BEHIND THE TIMES

The man who don't know the difference between Good Lumber and Poor Lumber is behind the times. Some people don't stop to take this difference into consideration
consequently don't get their money's worth.

If you happen to be one of the up-to-date fellows, who knows a good thing when he sees it. You're the man we want to show our lumber to. YOU'LL appreciate it.

HARVESTING FRUIT.

WHAT BERRY MEN ARE DOING.

Many Improvements Being Made
and Much Money Invested in the Business.

On Friday of last week the editor of the Tribune in company with T. A.
Taylor paid a visit to several of the cranberry marshes southwest of the city, and without exception we found the owners and their numerous assistants busily engaged in harvesting
the crop and getting it into the warehouses preparatory to getting ready for market.

The first marsh visited was that of M.
O. Potter. Mr. Potter had just quelled
a strike among the Indians, which although not of the magnitude of the anthracite coal strike in the east, was of vastly more importance to Mr. Potter. When an Indian makes up his mind to strike it seems that he just raises himself onto his hind legs, utters one of the guttural shouts of the red man, makes a motion with his hand, and the strike is in full swing. Now one might just as well try to arbitrate with a team of frightened steers as a tribe of Indians that are on a strike, but it seems that the trouble on this occasion was between the Indians themselves and Mr. Potter had managed to quiet the matter for the time being at least.

Mr. Potter is building a new warehouse on his marsh. It is a mammoth affair and is being finished with more care and precision than the average man puts on his house. The main part of the warehouse is 36x60 and there is a cleaning room on the side 16x60. It has three stories and an attic and is being finished with hardwood floors and on every side there are several thicknesses of matched lumber with air spaces between, so that the building will be as near frost proof as it is possible to build a place.
Mr. Potter expected to build a place one thousand bushels of berries and had about a hundred pickers at work gathering in the crop as rapidly as possible. The berries that had already been placed in the warehouse presented a very nice appearance and seemed to be of excellent quality, about the same as last year. When the warehouse is completed a steel track will be laid from the marsh so that the work of bringing the crop in will be greatly simplified, as heretofore
a wooden track has been used to run the cars on, which made hard work.

From the Potter marsh we went to the Gaynor-Blackstone place. Here pickers were just wending their way dinnerward, and Mrs. Gaynor greeted us with the welcome intelligence that if we would amuse ourselves for a few minutes she would have dinner ready for us. After partaking of a very wholesome dinner, during which Mr.
Taylor entertained us with a learned dissertation on the evils of coffee drinking, during which he kept steady-ly eating, thereby gaining several laps on the rest of the crowd, we went out to inspect the marsh and the work that was being done. About the first thing that Mr. Gaynor told us was that he thought that the Indians were going to strike. He had not seen his neighbors, nor had the noble redman hinted anything about any coming trouble, but the knowledge of their ways and actions had appraised Mr.
Gaynor of the fact that something was in the air.

During the past season Mr. Gaynor has made several improvements about the warehouse, and is now at work on a grader which will be completed in time to clean and sort this season's crop. It is expected that the running of the berries through this mill will take out all the dirt, pick out any frozen or soft berries and grade them into three sizes, and the machine is so arranged that the berries will be looked over as they run from the machine to the barrel. They expect to harvest about 2,100 barrels at this marsh and had something like two hundred pickers at work and a number of rakers. They expect to finish the work on Monday. They had lost a few berries from frost the previous week but although there had been a frost on Thursday night, they had got the water on the berries in time to prevent any damage. The quality of the berries is about the same as last year and the yield will be about the same, with a chance of its running a little short.

The next marsh we visited was that of A. C. Bennett & Son. Here we met A. E. Bennet, the junior member of the firm, who showed us about the place. The Bennetts expect to harvest about 2,200 barrels of berries this year and have a couple of hundred pickers at work getting in the crop as rapidly as possible. They expect to finish up the work today. This marsh escaped the heavy frost of week before last, but there was some damage done
on Thursday night of last week.
The Messrs. Bennett had begun to grade some of their berries, and they presented a very handsome appearance, although he stated that the quality was about the same as last year, while the quantity might fall a trifle short. Everything about the Bennett marsh is noticeable for its neatness and well-kept appearance,
and it was a real pleasure to look over the place.

From here we went to the marsh of Eugene Warner. Mr. Warner has not a very large marsh, expecting to harvest only about two hundred barrels, but he has it in nice shape and is gradually increasing his acreage so that in time he will be up with the best of them. His berries looked very nice and he was getting them
under shelter as rapidly as possible.
We next visited the marsh of J. B.
Arpin. Here a new warehouse is also being erected, which when completed will be a very complete and up-to-date affair. It is 24x70 feet in size and is so arranged that the wagon loaded with berries can be driven into the structure and unload. The building is being solidly constructed out of lumber and paper with dead air spaces between, making it as impervious to frost as it is possible to construct any ordinary building. Mr.

Arpin expects to harvest something like 3,000 barrels and at the time we were at the marsh about one-half of the crop had been placed in the cranberry house.

On our way home we also passed the Charles Lester marsh, but as it was growing late no stop was made. Mr.
Lester still has a large number of berries to pick and estimates his crop
at about 2,000 barrels.

Upon visiting these cranberry marshes one cannot help being impressed with the enthusiasm with which all the growers seem to enter into the work and the amount of investigation they do in order to improve their knowledge of the subject and thus aid them in getting a better crop. A trip to the marshes is well worth a day of anybody's time, and the only wonder is that more of our people do not take advantage of the opportunity to examine the workings of an industry that is rapidly becoming one of the principal sources of income in this section of the state.

THE PRESIDENT WAS HURT.

Abscess on Leg as Result of a Trolley Car Accident.

President Roosevelt has been compelled to give up his trip temporarily on account of an abscess that has developed on the knee of his left leg as the result of the trolley car accident which he participated in at Pittsfield Massachusetts, some time ago.

He had reached Indianapolis, Ind., yesterday and had made several speeches in that vicinity, and none of his friends knew that he was suffering from any hurt, and it was consequently a great surprise when it was learned that he had gone to the hospital and had an operation to remove an abscess from his knee.

At the time of the trolley car accident he received a severe bruise on the knee and since that time the abscess has been gradually forming. The operation was performed successfully,
and while no further evil results are anticipated the surgeons who had the case in hand state that the president will have to remain quiet for at least ten days, during which time he will have to abandon his trip, and as a consequence a great many people who had expected to see the president the coming week will be disappointed.

Death of James Hanna.

James Hanna, a resident of this city, died in Chicago on Wednesday of last week, cause of death being cancer of the liver. He had gone to Chicago to receive medical aid, but all that could be done for him was of no avail.

Deceased was born at Dansville, N. Y., and had lived in this city for several years, having been employed in the Grand Rapids Foundry company plant, he being a moulder by trade. He had been under the doctor's care since the 20th of April, and though he had suffered much from the malady that affected him he had borne his trouble with Christian fortitude, and was happy and cheerful until the last.

The funeral was held on Friday
last under the auspices of the Odd Fellows and Modern Woodmen, of which orders he was a member. The sermon was preached by Rev. Shaw and interment made in Forest Hill cemetery.

Mr. Hanna, although a Baptist by faith, has always been quite an active christian worker among other faiths
in the city, and has often occupied the pulpit in the different churches, on which occasions he delivered very able and earnest sermons. From this practice he had gained the name of moulder preacher, and he leaves
many friends who sincerely mourn
his death.

He is survived by a wife, who wishes to express her thanks to the kind neighbors and friends who so thoughtfully assisted during the sickness and after the death of her beloved husband.

Charged with Horse Stealing.

George Taylor, a man hailing from the vicinity of Black River Falls, was arrested by Sheriff McLaughlin
last week on a charge of horse stealing. The complaining witness in the case is Sam Greengrass, an Indian who also lives in the neighborhood of Black River Falls. The Indian had been on the cranberry marsh and stated that his pony had been stolen
by Taylor while out of the owner's sight.

When arrested Taylor told an entirely different story, and stated that the pony had been put in his possession by the owner with instructions to take care of it temporarily. Taylor's hearing occurs on the 29th instant.
In the meantime he is in the county jail.

Notice.

The undersigned have associated themselves together for the purpose

MAY BE THE RABIES.

DOG HAS AN UNKNOWN MALADY.

So Far as Experts Are Able to Judge
It Is Hydrophobia.—Other Items of Interest.

A red setter dog belonging to Clark Lyon became afflicted with some disease the fore part of the week, the symptoms of which very much resemble hydrophobia or, as it is commonly called, madness.

The dog first became affected on Monday, when he was noticed running about town in an aimless manner and paying little attention to anything except other dogs, which he did not hesitate to fight with, and as a general thing came off victoriously. As the dog had been a very docile and friendly animal and never known to fight, his actions soon attracted the attention of Mr. Lyon who watched the dog, and looking up the symptoms of dogs afflicted with rabies he found that they tallied with the actions of his dog.

On Wednesday morning the dog was caught and it was the intention of Mr.
Lyon to shoot the animal, but as he had bitten a large number of other dogs during the time that had elapsed since he was first noticed to be acting strangely, it was thought a wiser plan to confine the animal and await developments.

When the dog was captured this morning he had few, if any, of the symptoms of hydrophobia. He was docile and answered to his name promptly, and although he was badly lacerated by the fights he had had with other dogs, he was apparently recovering from his sickness, whatever it had been. Owing to the large number of dogs that have been bitten it would be well for owners of dogs to keep an eye on their canines, and if they show any symptoms of hydrophobia to confine them away from animals and people until the disease
takes some definite form.

It is not necessary to shoot a dog
the moment he shows indications of sickness, as the trouble may be something entirely different from rabies.
Mr. Lyon's dog has shown no inclination to bite any person, but some authorities claim that the tendency is often only to bite animals or other dogs.

Foot Ball at Stevens Point.—The high school football team will play a game of football with the normal team at Stevens Point on Saturday
next. It will be only a practice game, but will be a chance to discover what kind of material we have got this year.
It promises good and the boys say that they will be able to make a good showing when it comes down to business. If they hold up their end as well as they did last year they will find the people ready to stay with them on every occasion. Following is the line up this year: Center, Chas Kruger;
left guard, Len Renne; right guard,
Guy Rowland; left end, August Ban-delin; right end, Earl Wood; quarter, Lacy Horton; full back, Earl Brennan;
right half, John Corcoran; left half,
Rowland Murgatroyd; substitutes, Roy Lester, Wilbur Menier, Floyd Jenkins
and Henry Winger. The Wausau high school team has also organized and play their first regular game on Saturday. They claim to have a strong team this year.

Was Near Death.—Otto Flieg, who is the third hand on one of the machines at the mill of the John Edwards Manufacturing company at Port Edwards, came near meeting his death early Tuesday morning. He was engaged in starting the paper on the mill when he was caught and drawn through between the rolls, one arm and his head passing through. There happened to be very little paper on the rolls so that he was not killed instantly as he would otherwise have been, but he was pretty badly lacerated and got quite a squeeze between the rolls. A surgeon was called and looked him over and it is not thought that he will suffer any inconvenience.

Excursion to Marshfield.—The Wisconsin Central will run an excusion to Marshfield on Friday, September 26th, on account of the street fair which occurs in that city during the last three days of the week. The train will leave Nekoosa at 9:25 and Grand Rapids at 9:45 a. m. and the return train will leave Marshfield at 9 o'clock p. m. This will give those who wish to attend the street fair a chance to spend ten hours at Marshfield, which will be ample time to take in all the attractions of the fair.
Elaborate preparations have been made to entertain visitors and there is no question but those who attend
will find something doing.

Adjudged Insane.—Mrs. Henry Demitz was taken before Judge Conway on Friday to be examined to determine as to her sanity. She was found to be not of sound mind by the examining physicians and the judge remanded her to the northern hospital for the insane, where she was taken the same day. Mrs. Demitz has been more or less irrational ever since her husband met a violent death some two years ago, and for some time past has been living with her daughter in this city who had hoped to be able to take care of her without having her committed to an asylum, but had found it impossible.

An Old Landmark.—Frank A. Cady
is moving a small house at the corner of Baker and Milwaukee streets which is an old landmark in that neighborhood, and a house which many of our older citizens remember with pleasure
as well as in some instances with regret. The little house was formerly a schoolhouse and was erected some fifty years ago, and many an old resident acquired the rudiments of his education there. Mr. Cady is moving the building preparatory to erecting a modern residence there, which he may in time occupy with his family, while the old building will also be fixed up for the same purpose.

Chicken Pie Supper.—The ladies of the W. C. T. U. gave a chicken pie supper in the parlors of the Methodist church on Tuesday evening that was about the most successful thing of the kind that has been held in the city for some time. There was a large crowd in attendance and the supper served by the ladies was an exceptionally good one, and everyone seemed greatly pleased with the entertainment furnished them. The object of the supper was for the purpose of discharging the debt that had accumulated on the 20th Century place.

Wrestled at Pittsville.—Fred Beell
and Henry Boisjoly wrestled at Pitts-ville on Saturday evening, best three out of five falls, catch-as-catch-can style, and the match resulted in a victory for Beell. Boisjoly won the first fall and Beell won the next three. Boisjoly claimed to be the champion of Canada and weighs about 185 pounds, some twenty-five pounds more than Beell. A good crowd greeted the wrestlers and everybody seemed to be pleased with the match.

Broke His Nose.—The first football victim this year was Master Howard McLaughlin, who broke his nose
while engaged with some of his playmates in a game of this popular sport.
Dr. Looze fixed the youngster up and he will soon be able to be out and assume his old position in the team,
for it takes more than a broken nose to discourage the average young American who is a football enthusiast.

Carry-King.—Miss Laura King
and Dr. George H. Carey, both of Merrill, were married in that city on Tuesday. Miss Mayne Daly of this city acted as bridesmaid. Miss King is well and favorably known in this city and her husband is well known physician who has made Merrill his home during the past year. The doctor and his bride have the best wishes of their friends in this locality.

Administrator Appointed.—Walter
S. Paddock of Milwaukee has been appointed administrator of the estate of J. W. Cameron, the appointment having been made in accordance with the petition of Mrs. Mary F.
Cameron and Frank J. Cameron. The estate amounts to $500,000 in personal property and $18,000 in real estate.
The deceased left no will whatever at the time of his death.

Bought Insurance Business.—G.
W. Paulus has purchased the insurance business of W. A. Keyes & Son and that business will be added to the rapidly growing business of Mr. Paulus. Since engaging in the real estate and insurance business Mr. Paulus has met with great success, much better than he had anticipated in so short a time, and he feels greatly encouraged by the outlook.

Worth Attending.—The band boys want it known that they are going to make their dance which occurs on October 2nd an affair that will be greatly enjoyed by the dancing public.
They have prepared a lot of new music among which is the Bachelor Maid's two step, which has caused very favorable comment wherever it has been played. The dance occurs a week from Thursday.

Improving the Road.—A gang of men and teams have been at work on the stretch of road near South Centralia facing the thoroughfare with clay, and the result is that the road is already much improved thereby. The clay is being taken from the cut near the railroad at South Centraia, and seems to be particularly adapted for this purpose.

A Pleasant Party.—The Misses Johnson entertained a party of their friends at the home of their parents,
Mr. and Mrs. Nels Johnson, on Saturday afternoon and evening and a very pleasant time is reported by those that attended. Among the other amusements the young folks indulged in dancing for several hours.

Nearing Completion.—The new wagon factory being erected by the MacKinnon Manufacturing company is being carried along at a rapid rate
and it begins to make a very neat appearance, being constructed of brick.
It is probable that another month will see the greater part of the work completed.

Marriage Licenses.—County Clerk
Renne has issued the following marriage licenses during the past week: Henry Kucmichol and Bertha Darfane, both of Marshfield.

Democratic Convention.

The Democratic county convention
for the purpose of placing in nomination a member of assembly and a full county ticket will be held at Marshfield on Friday afternoon, September 26th. Owing to the fact that the street fair is also in session at that date a train will be run down at nine o'clock and the delegates will be enabled to get home the same evening.
The delegates to the convention from this city are as follows:

First ward—Louis Schroeder.
Second ward—Henry Kline and Herman Abel.
Third ward—George W. Baker.
Fourth ward—Albert Bunde.
Fifth ward—Joseph Lucascski.
Sixth ward—D. D. Conway.
Seventh ward—P. Mulroy.
Eighth ward—G. W. Mason.

FETTERED BY FATE

BY ALEXANDER ROBERTSON

"Jollette's Fate," "Little Sweetheart," "Lottie, the Sewing Girl," "Goldmaker of Lisbon," "Wedded to Win," "Diana Thorpe," "Horn's Legacy," Etc., Etc.

A short time later, and he drew up in front of the old mill. It was as picturesque a spot as one could well imagine, for great trees overhanging the ruined mill and the noisy fall of the water over the dam could be plainly heard.

Roger had evidently been here before, and made all arrangements, for, even as he leaped to the ground and was in the act of lifting Carol down, the door opened and a woman appeared in view, holding a sputtering candle.

The shadow of a terrible crime hung over the place, and most people in the neighborhood avoided it, especially after nightfall. All the money in the vaults of the treasury could hardly have tempted one of the negroes on Richmond Terrace or Darrel Chase to have willingly gone to the haunted mill when darkness had descended upon the land.

What this crime was does not enter into our story, so far as particulars are concerned, but let it suffice to say that the mad miller murdered his wife in a fit of jealousy, and also the man who was working for him, ending the terrible tragedy in a fitting manner by taking his own life.

The children of this unhappy couple had been taken in charge by relatives, who tried to rent out the mill, but the effort was in vain, for all united in declaring it was haunted, and that in the middle of the night they would be aroused by a terrible din.

They declared they heard the mad miller chasing his wife and hired man from room to room, cursing and reviling, while they prayed and pleaded with him. Then would come the sound of heavy blows with a knife, one for each person, heavy falls, terrible groans, and silence would ensue.

For some years back the mill had been inhabited by a woman who called herself Mrs. Randall, and it was assumed that she was a widow. She was quiet and troubled no one, and always seemed to have enough money to keep herself in existence and aid those poorer than herself.

Carol was warmly received. She sank wearily into a chair, and then gazed about her with a trifling show of interest, while the woman went to prepare a room. Somehow the young girl had thought Mrs. Randall's eyes had rested upon her in a most singular manner, and yet to her knowledge she had never seen the lady before.

That she was a lady despite her poor surroundings was plain to be seen. Her hair had once been black, but was now a silver gray, and brushed smoothly away from a forehead that was white as snow, though furrowed by the cares of years. The room in which Roger and Carol were left was scantily furnished, and what few articles there were showed signs of age, having, no doubt, once been the property of the mad miller.

Upon one wall was a picture, in a small frame, with its face turned away. Several other pictures there were, but none had been treated in this way.

She saw Roger standing near her, his eyes glued upon her form as though he was drinking in all her loveliness, and she did look beautiful beyond all comparison in her wedding dress of white silk, but somehow her mind wandered back again to the picture on the wall, and again she let her eyes fall upon it. Curiosity in itself is strong enough in any one, but it was some greater power than this that urged Carol to walk over to the picture. It seemed as though some invisible power had hold of her hand and was leading her on.

She had gazed upon the face of her father!

CHAPTER IX.

What did it mean? This was the question that kept ringing its changes through her brain as she stood there before that mysterious picture.

The face was that of a man in the prime of life, evidently between thirty-five and forty, and so different was it from the Lawrence Richmond of the present that she might not have recognized it had not she seen a copy of the same picture upon the wall at home.

What mystery was this? By what right did this lone woman, who came from no one knew where, have her father's picture upon the wall? Was the fact of its face being turned in to be considered an insult, or what? Her blood began to leap through her veins, but she was suddenly aroused by the voice of Roger.

"Carol!" A simple pronouncement of her name, but there was that in the tone that caused her heart to seemingly stand still.

Roger had only obtained a glimpse of the face that was inclosed in the gold frame and turned to the wall, and he had not recognized it, of course. His mind, too, was upon other things, and he paid little heed to the emotion of the young girl save as it referred to him.

He came a step closer to her. His arms were held out, his pleading eyes fixed upon her own with a glance that was almost fascination.

How she longed to throw herself into those arms and be forever at rest; but she knew full well guilt would never let her rest, and, with a heroism worthy of the olden martyrs, she stifled her throbbing heart as best she could, and held back.

What did she believe of him, standing there and looking him in the eyes?

The story of Nora Warner, as told by that unfortunate girl herself, must have flashed into her mind like lightning, but, with her eyes upon Roger Darrel's handsome, honest face, she was sure that he could do no wrong to any one willfully as that she drew breath.

That Nora Warner was his wretched wife she understood too well, for had he not himself acknowledged the stain upon his name; but that he had acted the part of a villain toward her Carol could never believe.

Wonderful, it is not, what things dart through the mind in a few seconds of time? Roger could bear the silence no longer. When he spoke his voice vibrated

ed with emotion, which he tried in vain to suppress.

"Carol, my own love, for the last time I come to you, a suppliant. Pride has given way before the love that floods my soul. You may hate me for thus tempting you, but I do not look at it in the same light you do. The shame of the past is buried in the mad house. Why should this woman come between us? Oh, my poor darling, why were you cursed with a love like mine, that seems to blight where it falls; and yet if I could serve you by having my poor body tortured, willingly would I undergo the affliction. You believe me, do you not, beloved?"

"You know I do, Roger. You know that my heart is wholly yours, and ever will be, but once again I tell you what you ask can never be. There rests between us a deep and unfathomable abyss. My heart is breaking, Roger, but better that it should do so with love than shame and disgrace."

"Shame and disgrace," he muttered, repeating her words almost unconsciously, and with a vague look upon his face. "Forgive me for saying it, dear, but I cannot ever be your wife while Nora Warner lives. Her death can wipe out the shame, nothing else. Until then we can be nothing to each other."

A light leaped into his face that was most wonderful to see. It seemed transfigured, and the sadness of woe unutterable gave way to the brightness of hope and joy.

"Carol," he said, huskily, "would you be my wife if Nora Warner were dead, so that her name would be all that was left of her? Would that indeed wipe out the disgrace that has fallen upon the name in your eyes?"

"To both of your questions I have but one answer—yes! Heaven knows how willingly I would join my lot with yours, to be with you always, in sickness or in health; but while Nora Warner lives it is impossible. Give up all thoughts of such happiness, dear Roger, for it is beyond reach."

She pitied him the more since she had seen that glad light leap into his eyes, for she felt sure that he was building up false hopes.

"Not so far as you imagine, my darling. Even now it seems to me the skies are growing brighter," he said, drawing forth a letter.

"What do you mean, Roger?" "Nora Warner is dead!" he replied, slowly.

"The girl gave a start, and an exclamation fell from her lips.

"Impossible!" she cried. "Not so, dearest. Read that letter, and you will see that what I have told you was the truth. Nora Warner, poor girl, has found rest. The letter was delayed in finding its destination, and some kind fate directed it into my hands. Read."

This was what she read in the great, coarse scrawl of a man who had been a scholar once, perhaps, but never a good penman:

"Mr. Roger Darrel:

"Sir—The young woman whom you committed to my care, Nora Warner, made her escape from the asylum a week since, and drowned herself in the river. We have this day succeeded in finding the body, which, though badly mutilated by the fishes, has been identified by articles of clothing as that of your unfortunate wife. It shall wait for you two days, and at the termination of that period, should you not come, will have the body interred. With deepest sympathy for your great loss, I subscribe myself, your humble servant,

"TIMOTHY GRIM, M. D.

"Elysium House on the Potomac." She read this through and then handed it back to him with a look of pain on her face.

"This Timothy Grim, M. D., may on ordinary occasions be a keen man, but fate has made a fool of him, or else this letter has been purposely delayed so that any deception he may have intended could be carried out. One thing is sure: Nora Warner is in the flesh for days after this letter was written. I have seen and conversed with her, face to face."

"Alive and here! What can she want, poor girl; but why need I ask? If that be so, then all is gloom again where I had caught a glimpse of dawn, and the darkness will be all the darker and the pain more bitter because of it. Oh, Carol, am I to go from you forever? Something seems to tell me that if we part now it will be never to meet again."

His eyes were glued upon her face, full of the passionate fire of the absorbing love that possessed his soul, and she trembled under the look, knowing her weakness now that love had such a power over her heart; but she summoned up her courage and resolutely shut out the alluring scene that came before her.

"Roger, there is but one answer," she said. "Love can command my life, but it can never cause me to forget that I am a Richmond. As the dearest friend I have on earth, I look to you, but more than that you cannot, must not be while she lives. My answer is—heaven help us both—go!"

He nerved himself to meet it like a man, but it was a terrible blow.

"Carol, it may be you are right, though I am too blinded by love and sorrow to comprehend it. In the future I shall be to you a friend in time of need. I shall come and see you here, but never again as your lover. Then if there is any relative to whom you would like to go, I will take you there. I hear Mrs. Randall coming. Trust in her, for she is a true friend. And now farewell, my own, my life. Farewell, farewell."

Pining, she struggled with his fierce embrace. He stood there looking at her while she grew calm and icy cold. Then turning, he took his hat and left the old mill.

She sank back with clasped hands and tearful eyes. "Give me strength, oh Father in heaven, for the light of my life goes out with him!"

CHAPTER X.

When Mrs. Randall entered the room, the mind of the young girl leaped again to the mystery that had engrossed it before Roger Darrel made his appeal for life and love—her father's picture turned with its face to the wall.

What was there in the hidden past of this still handsome woman that connected her with Lawrence Richmond?

The widow had not even heard Carol's name from Roger, he having only stated the bare facts, and she had consented to come to aid him, her soul recognizing the injustice of such a forced marriage.

Carol possessed a part of her father's determined character, and she did not long beat about the bush. Though her question apparently startled the widow, there crept a shadow of pain into her face and her voice trembled as she said: "People often turn to the wall the pictures of those dead. He is dead to me."

"Was he a great friend, then?" asked Carol, breathlessly, her eyes glued upon Mrs. Randall's face.

"He was more than that, child. Ah! It is a sad thing to have the one you love best upon earth turn upon you and revile you—to wrongfully accuse you of that at which your heart recoils in horror; to send you from him as he would a leper, and at one fell swoop, wipe out the happy past. I loved him," she continued, in a low, sad tone, "as men never loved. I have loved him so truly that I have forgiven the great wrong he did me, though my pride would never allow me to seek his presence again. Upon the dear graves in the sunny South I have shed bitter tears, but when I think how I shall meet them above, where the truth will be made known, and my heart shown to be as spotless as the marble shaft that marks their grave, I take hope again."

It was at this point that the first gleam of the light that was soon to overwhelm Carol, came into her mind. She could only sit there with all her senses strained, drinking in the sweet voice of the widow and await the coming shock.

"Trouble and sorrow have been my lot. Ah! I never thought I should survive that dreadful night, and many a time since I have looked back to shudder and feel my heart grow cold with the horror that took possession of it. He turned a deaf ear to my pleadings—my vows—and cursed me, but for that I have forgiven him, for I was innocent. His curse went home. God punished him, oh, how terribly, and yet at the same time I had to suffer with him, for were they not my darlings? Not one was left; he alone remained to curse the blight that had fallen upon his home, the desolation that had robbed him even as he had robbed me!"

All this while Carol had been utterly unable to speak a word, but now she recovered her breath.

"In heaven's name, who are you, and what relation do you bear to Lawrence Richmond?" she gasped, her eyes aflame with eager expectancy.

"I was told afterwards that the courts had made us strangers, but for eight years he called me by that dearest name on earth—wife. I am nothing to him now save the wretched woman from whom he was divorced, and who loves him still in spite of her wrongs; but why do you ask? Your face is white, and your hands tremble. You advance toward me—you hold out your arms. No, it must be a dream, for they all sleep under the magnolias. Girl with the eyes and face of my dear Carol, what relation does this man bear to you?" and she tore down the hidden picture, holding it in front of Carol's face.

LIGHTEST WOOD THAT GROWS.

Found in Missouri, and It Is Considerably Lighter than Cork.

Deep in the bogs and swamps of southeastern Missouri, in Dunklin and Butler Counties, where the land is never dry and water from one to six feet deep stands perpetually in the forests, there grows a rare and curious tree. The natives know it as the corkwood, or cork, tree. Science has given it a longer name, the Lelneria floridana, Florida because it was first discovered in Florida along the coast, from which it has long since been washed away.

Some meager specimens of it, two to six feet high, are still found in the swamp near Appalachicola, Fla., and a few near Varner, Ark., but in both these places it is exceedingly limited in numbers, an occasional specimen being found, and hardly rises to the dignity of a tree. Only in southeast Missouri, where it reaches a height of fifteen to twenty feet and a diameter of two to five inches, is it really a tree.

What makes the corkwood so remarkable is its exceeding lightness. Beyond a doubt it is, as William Trelease, of the Missouri Botanical Garden, has shown, the lightest tree in weight that grows. Its wood weighs less than cork. It is so light that the natives use it to make floats for their fishing nets. And yet its wood, though so spongy that one may easily sink one's finger nail in it, is far tougher than cork. The specific gravity of corkwood, as learned from careful tests made by Professor Nipher, in St. Louis, is .207. The roots are even lighter than the stem; a test showed them to have the astonishingly low specific gravity of .15.

A further idea of the lightness of the corkwood may be gained by a comparison with other woods. The great majority of woods range between .400 and .800. Cork itself is .240. The tree that approaches closest to the corkwood in lightness is the golden fir tree, which grows in the swamps around Tampa bay and along the Indian River, Florida. Its specific gravity, according to Sargent, is .2416. In comparison with the corkwood, which is the lightest wood with its specific gravity of .207, may be placed the heaviest wood known, the black ironwood of Florida, whose specific gravity is .1302.

Reason Enough.

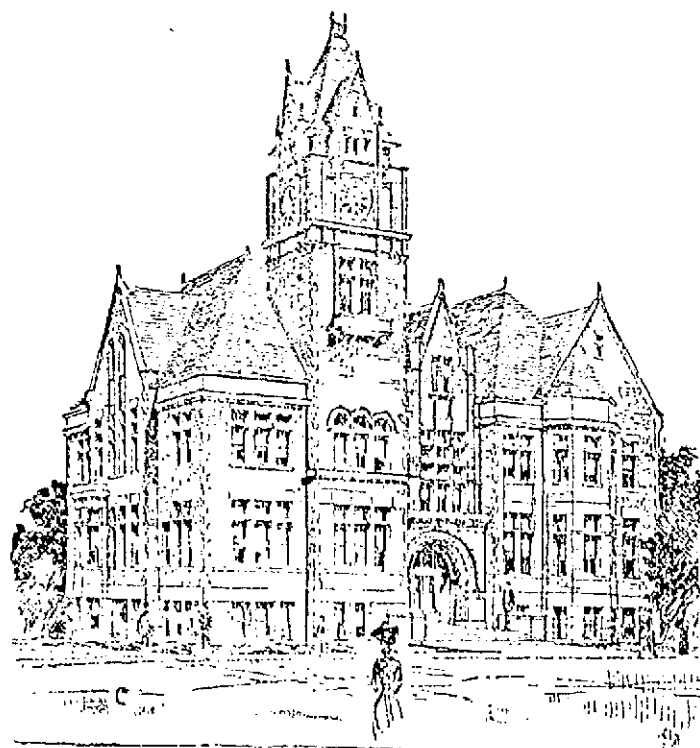

"Mary," said the young matron's mother, "it seemed to me you were very cold to John this morning."

"Yes," she replied, "I'm beginning to suspect him."

COUNCIL ACCEPTS JANESVILLE'S CITY HALL.

Janesville, Wis., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The common council last evening accepted the new city hall, which has just been completed. The building is a credit to the city. The architectural work reflects much credit to A. W. Rush, who planned and designed the building.

James Rowson & Son also performed their work in a creditable manner and hurried the construction of it as much as possible. The work on the building was commenced on September 23 of last year. The foundation walls have been put in with a view of supporting great weight. The offices in the building are all large and roomy and the lighting is first-class.

The structure is of a Romanesque architecture and its dimensions are 70x100 x110, two stories high and basement, with a tower reaching 70 feet high above the main cornice line. It is one of the most imposing buildings in the city, and its perfectness in the way of construction and evenness of the color of the material used in its construction makes it show up very prominently.

The inside finish of the building is one of the attractive features of it, and it has been done in a manner that conforms in beauty to the solidness and excellence of the exterior.

ABDUCTOR IS DIVORCED. GORED BY WILD HEIFER.

MRS. MARY B. GOULD GRANTED A DECREE IN MINNESOTA.

Husband Kidnaped Children and Sent Them to England, Where They Are at Present.

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 20.—A sequel to a sensational kidnaping affair was enacted at St. Paul, Minn., yesterday, when Mrs. Mary B. Gould was given a divorce from Arthur Baring Gould on the grounds of desertion. No mention was made in regard to the children who were kidnaped by the father or of any alimony. No defense was made and the whereabouts of the husband is not known.

It is the ending of a sensational abduction, at Oshkosh, Wis., last year, when Baring Gould, who is connected with the English nobility and a cousin of the Baring Bros., the great London bankers, took the children away from the custody of his wife, with whom he was not then living, and sent them to England to be educated. They are now being cared for by his relatives.

This episode is said to have completely upset Mrs. Baring Gould. She came here prostrated and lived with her sister, the wife of Register Sanborn of the Minot land office. Mrs. Baring Gould is a daughter of the late J. L. Bigger, formerly a widely known merchant of Oshkosh and afterwards postmaster at Lisbon, N. D.

TO SEEK OLD TRAIL.

Man Who Carried Mail Between Green Day and Manitowoc Fifty Years Ago to Make Trip.

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Mat Regnen of this city starts this morning on a journey which will be of great interest to himself and to the people of this part of the state. Of interest to Mr. Regnen, because it has been fifty years since he made it before, and of interest to the public because it will show how much the country has been improved since that time. In the fall of '52 Mr. Regnen carried the United States mails over Indian trails between Green Bay and Manitowoc.

Tomorrow he starts out to see if he can trace his old trail between the two places. He will go horseback, as he did fifty years ago, and expects to return next week. In speaking of the trip today Mr. Regnen said that he was doubtful of being able to find his old trail. He said that he would probably find farm after farm on the ground which was formerly covered with Indian paths, but the trip would bring up many pleasant memories of the time when he traveled through this wilderness alone with the government mail. He was but 14 years old at that time and he is now a man of 64.

TO REMOVE MAN'S CHEEK.

Operation to Be Tried by Cutting Out Cancer and Grafting Skin from the Arm.

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Mr. Joseph Kennedy of Brinsmade, Benson county, N. D., is at one of the local hospitals to have a portion of his cheek, on which there is a cancer, cut away and in its place a piece of skin from one of his arms grafted.

Mr. Kennedy some time ago had a cancer cut away but it returned. He came down here and the surgeons thought it so large that it was a serious problem as to how to get flesh back into its place. According to Dr. Kennedy the decision was made to get the cancer off and then to cut a flap on the arm and to place it over the wound, meanwhile pinning the arm to the face by means of a plaster cast. It will have to remain in that position for several weeks in order to become firmly grafted before the cast is taken off.

A preliminary operation was performed yesterday and he is getting along nicely.

FIND PEARLS NEAR TWO RIVERS.

Valuable Jewels Picked Up in Neshoto River Near the City.

Two Rivers, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Quite a number of valuable pearls have recently been found in the Neshoto river. This river abounds with limestone reefs a few miles from here, among which thousands of clams can be found and it is here that most of the shells containing pearls are found.

Dr. A. By of this city has purchased the Waterson Sanatorium and intends to equip it with all modern appliances. He will act as chief surgeon.

P. J. Diert will soon have his bowling alleys completed. It will have three alleys and be finely equipped.

GORED BY WILD HEIFER.

WILLIAM BLANCHARD OF REEDSBURG SERIOUSLY INJURED.

It Is Feared the Wounds Will Prove Fatal as Vital Spot Was Pierced.

Reedsburg, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—William Blanchard, a farmer, delivered a herd of cattle to the La Valle stock yards twelve miles north of this city, among which was a wild heifer.

After the animal was untied it made a lunge at him, thrusting one horn into his groin, inflicting a severe wound. He was taken to the office of Dr. Miller, where his wound was dressed. It is feared that the wound will prove fatal.

GAMBLERS' HARVEST AT NEENAH CARNIVAL.

Followers of Street Fair Are Said to Have Had a Big Week Fleecing the Visitors.

Menasha, Wis., Sept. 20.—Gamblers and grafters following a street show have in three days fleeced residents in Neenah and Menasha of $40,000. The games were run in open view of the street. One thousand one hundred dollars were seen to pass over one table in less than fifteen minutes.

P. N. Dugan, a divinity student at Lawrence University, was asked by the gamblers to act as a croupier at the games. Last night girls were allowed to enter saloons and bet money on the "sure thing" games. Merchants and citizens generally are loud in their denunciation of the gambling operations.

The Menasha Woodenware Company paid $38,000 to employ Wednesday. Of this sum $15,000 is now estimated to be in the hands of the gamblers, and the company has already been asked for $1000 worth of advance checks by employees to apply on next month's account.

SMASH SLOT MACHINES.

Reedsburg Residents Lose Money and Then Seek Revenge by Demolishing the Devices.

Reedsburg, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Abd. Frank Foss and Dr. J. I. Collins, a veterinary surgeon of this city, demolished two slot machines in a regular Carrie Nation style, although no hatchet was used in the work of destruction.

They came into the saloon of Albert Gifford on Main street and after playing the machine themselves, picked up a mustard glass off of the lunch counter and hurled it at the machine, which caused the glass to scatter all over the room. They next picked up the machine and threw it on the floor with such force as to cause it to shatter to pieces.

Rent on destruction, they next went to the saloon of Ballow & Lindsay and in a few minutes had the machine of that place out of commission. They left this place with the intention of cleaning up the entire town, but met William Miller, who owns the machines, and were persuaded to discontinue their work of destruction.

PAID $23 FOR WIFE.

Frank Weetski of Kenosha Contracts to Purchase Life Partner for That Amount.

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Frank Weetski, a resident of this city, agreed to pay $23 to Joseph Szepanski providing the latter would supply him with a wife. This the last-named agreed to do and the agreement was paid several months ago. Szepanski failed to live up to his promises and yesterday he was made the defendant in a suit to recover the money.

Weetski is a laborer in the employ of the Bain Wacon Works. He had been living in Kenosha for several years, and growing tired of living alone he appealed to his friends to assist him in securing a wife. The Szepanskis finally agreed to secure a Polish wife for Weetski for the sum of $23.

The would-be husband worked early and late and in time had saved the money necessary, which he paid over to the matrimonial agent and with patience waited for the coming of his fiancée.

Kenosha Couple Wed.

Waukegan, Ill., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Yesterday Charles S. Smith and Fortia Elke, both of Kenosha, came down here, secured a marriage license and were wedded.

ADAPTABILITY OF HOUSEKEEPING.

It's a Veritable Picnic Beside Some Business Women's Tasks.

It is seldom that so true a statement concerning woman's work is seen as the following from the New York Sun: "Probably if women had never taken up business careers they would have gone on to the end of time considering the person who looked after the details of a home and planned three meals a day as a martyr who was fairly weighed down by the awful monotony of her lot. There is one person who will never take much stock in that old cry, and that is the woman who has been in the steady grad of a business career."

Housekeeping is to a certain limit elastic in its demands; you can wash tomorrow if it rains today. But newspapers or magazines go to press on certain hours regardless of the elements or moods of humanity.

There are many trying things in housekeeping, and it may be monotonous to cook or plan three meals a day, to make beds and sweep, but how about the stenographer who takes dictation for hours at a stretch, without a thought of the monotony which all women are so often advised to take; or the girls in shops and factories, who work from morning till night, with no time to run out for gossip with a neighbor or to do necessary shopping?

Housekeeping in its adaptability and variety is a veritable picnic beside other spheres of work, says a writer in commenting on the subject. A woman needs a year or two of business, not a teacher's life, to understand the good points in a housekeeper's trade, and girls who have come from offices or stores frequently make the best of housekeepers. They are more free from household traditions and there are a lot of things that ought to be forgotten.

Had Crazy Spells.

West Pembroke, Me., Sept. 22d.—The 13-year-old daughter of Mrs. A. L. Smith suffered with a peculiar affliction which her mother describes as follows:

"It is two years now since she was first taken with crazy spells."

"They kept on coming at intervals and I could get nothing to do her any good."

"The doctors gave me no encouragement. They all said they could not help her."

"The crazy spell would last about nine days, then she would be well about nine days, but would eat very little and was very yellow. Even the whites of her eyes were yellow."

"I heard that Dodd's Kidney Pills were a great remedy for young girls and decided to try them."

"After taking one box she was completely restored and she has not had one bad spell since. Of course we continued to use the pills and she used altogether five boxes last fall."

"In March I thought I saw symptoms of the spells again and I got six boxes, of which she has taken four, and is in splendid health."

"Her case was certainly a remarkable one, and we are very thankful to Dodd's Kidney Pills for the great good they have done my daughter."

His Long Suit.

"I was in Washington once," said a man at the club, "when Tom Reed was the czar of the House of Representatives. He was holding forth with earnestness on some thing or other, and a group of friends when that man you see over there by the cigar counter pushed his way through the crowd, grasped Reed by the hand and said, 'Hello, Tom, old boy, how do you do?'"

"Reed responded in a manner that was more of a shake for the man than for his hand and went on with his talk. When our friend over there had edged out of the crowd someone said: 'You didn't seem to be happy over him, Reed. Who is your friend, anyway?'"

"Reed drawled out: 'He's a fellow from New York who knows more men who don't want to know him than any other man in the United States.'"

For Superintendent of Public Instruction—
KARL MATHIE, of Wausau.
For Member of Congress, Tenth Congressional District—
BURT WILLIAMS, of Ashland.

DAVID S. ROSE.

Supt. Karl Mathie.

The nominee of the Democratic party for the state superintendency of public instruction is a native of Wisconsin. He was born at Wausau, April 12, 1866, and received his early education in the public schools. His father, who was a skilled blacksmith, and believing that every boy ought to learn a trade, placed young Mathie in a workshop, where he acquired the trade of jeweler and watchmaker.

The young mechanic, however, had greater ambitions than to spend the rest of his life at a trade, and after repairing clocks and watches and manufacturing jewelry for six years he entered Lawrence University. Here he not only graduated but took valedictorian and oratorical honors. Thereafter he attended Harvard University, where he took a year's post-graduate work.

In 1892 he entered the profession of teaching by becoming principal of the Wausau high school. After serving three years he entered the ministry. In this field he remained for one year, when he resumed his educational labors. He then became the superintendent of the Wausau schools, which position he has filled with great credit to himself and his city.

In the establishment of the Marathon County Training school, Supt. Mathie manifested considerable interest. He labored incessantly toward creating public sentiment and in securing the necessary appropriation for it.

Last December Mr. Mathie was made the President of the Wisconsin Teachers' Association. The coming semi-centennial meeting of the association will, under his direction, no doubt, prove a decided success.

Mr. Mathie is a man of fine character, able and energetic. He will administer the office, if elected, impartially and strictly in the interest of the public education.—Wisconsin Journal of Education.

Looks Like Rose.

From the number of Rose buttons that are being worn about town just now the democratic nominee for governor would seem to be quite a popular fellow in spite of all the talk we are compelled to listen to by the alleged admirers of LaFollette. Every day sees more converts to the cause of Democracy, and notwithstanding the fact that the republicans are doing the best they can to keep up their courage by telling how badly demoralized the democrats are, the democrats seem to be happier in their demoralization than the republicans are in their alleged strength.

Wausau 6, Grand Rapids 4.

In spite of a drizzling rain on Sunday a fair sized crowd of spectators gathered at the fair grounds on that day to see the game between Wausau and Grand Rapids, and although the game resulted in a victory for the visitors there was some good playing on both sides, and the score was close enough all the way through so that the interest was kept up until the end of the ninth inning.

The home boys made a few wild plays at times and went to pieces for a few minutes during which the Wausau boys got in two runs which gave them the game, the locals being unable to make up the lead. Had it not been for this one break the ninth inning would have ended with the score standing 4 to 4.

The almost continuous rain made the ball hard to handle and this probably prevented some of the playing being as good as it would have been otherwise.

An Enticing Offer.

The Tribune is in receipt of a proposition from a North Carolina concern which offers us 20 quarts of good whiskey, valued at $24, in return for $15 worth of advertising and $5 in cash. This is the latest. We have been approached by advertisers who offered us patent smoke consumers, bug catchers, axle grease, saleratus, soap, and various and sundry other useful articles, but this is the first time we have been tempted with anything so alluring as 20 quarts of whiskey.

This is where the editor has the bulge on his neighbors. While some man may be compelled to come home to the bosom of his family and find his wife and children crying for only few drops of whiskey, when an editor leaves for his place of business in the morning he can do it with a clear conscience for he knows there is an abundant supply of whiskey to last until his return, and if there isn't he can easily make a new advertising contract and get another 20 quarts. Just keep your eye peeled and when you see a country paper running an ad. that says in large letters, "Whiskey, $1.10 per gallon" you will know that that editor has sold his good advertising space for a demijohn of poor whiskey and that he has in his cellar the wherewithal for a protracted drunk with probably a case of delirium tremens on the side. Notwithstanding the fact that the hunting season is on, that we live in a very changeable climate where stimulants are an absolute necessity, and that the campaign is rapidly approaching, we are compelled to turn the offer down.

Dog Owners, Attention!

A dog pronounced to be suffering with rabies having been at large the last two or three days, and having bitten many other dogs, it has been considered advisable to prohibit for a time all dogs from running at large unless muzzled. Owners of dogs, therefore, must see to it that their dogs be either muzzled or kept at home, as the police will be given notice to shoot all unmuzzled dogs running at large. Owners of dogs bitten must either shoot their dogs or keep them under close quarantine until period of incubation is over.

Dress does not make the person. Nor does a clean exterior indicate a clean interior. To be well all organs of the body must work in harmony. Rocky Mountain Tea does this work. Sold by Johnson & Hill Co.

From the Journal of Education, Boston, Sept. 11, 1902: "Karl Mathie the talented and popular superintendent of schools at Wausau, Wis., has been given the Democratic nomination as state superintendent of schools. There is so much feeling over the defeat of Dr. Harvey that the election of Mathie is even predicted by some enthusiasts. Wouldn't he give Wisconsin a wide-awake educational experience though?"

Attorney D. D. Conway returned on Thursday from Wautoma where he had been trying a case before the circuit court. The case was rather a peculiar one, Frank A. Kennedy having brought suit against M. Plank & Co. of Hancock, to recover the value of a horse. Mr. Kennedy had gone to the store of Plank & Co. and bought what he supposed was a quantity of glander salts but which subsequently turned out to be copperas. It was given to a horse and the horse died. Mr. Conway was for the plaintiff and the court found for him in the sum of $315.

Come out and see the great Irish comedy drama "The Game Keeper" at the Grand Opera House, Friday night, Sept. 26th. Prices 25, 35 and 50c.

As the campaign waxes hotter, and the indications point more certainly to the defeat of Governor LaFollette it will be amusing to watch the half-breeds in their frantic efforts to convince the admirers of Sen. Spooner that they are earnest in their desire to see him returned to the senate as any stalwart ever was. As soon as they are convinced of the danger which now lurks in their hidden attacks upon him, they will bring like a whipped spaniel before the glance of a cruel master. The fear of losing office is a powerful deterrent to half-breed statesmen.—Madisonian.

FOR SALE.—Black stallion half Belgian, white face, age 5 years, weight between 15 and 16 hundred, has stood two years and raised some fine colts. For further particulars inquire of Peter Moberg, Sigel, Wis.

Once, says a writer, I suddenly opened the door of my mother's room and saw her on her knees beside her chair, and heard her speak my name in prayer. I quickly and quietly withdrew with a feeling of awe and reverence in my heart. Soon I went away from home to school, then to college, then to life's sterner duties. But I never forgot that one glimpse of my mother at prayer, nor the one word—my own name—which I heard her utter. Well did I know that what I had seen that day was but a glimpse of what was going on every day in that sacred closet of prayer, and the consciousness strengthened me a thousand times in duty, in danger, and in struggle. When death came at last and sealed those lips, the sorrest sense of loss I felt was the knowledge that no more would my mother be praying for me.—Our Dumb Animals.

When once liberated within your system it produces a most wonderful effect. It's worth one's last dollar to feel the pleasure of life that comes by taking Rocky Mountain Tea. Sold by Johnson & Hill Co.

The favorite singing and dancing comedian, Thos. J. Smith, who will be seen at the Grand Opera House, Friday, Sept. 26th, in Con T. Murphy's latest Irish drama, "The Game Keeper," is today the only recognized star who can sing, dance and act. Mr. Smith will no doubt be remembered by all, when the fact is made known that he was the original star in "The Ivy Leaf." The scenery carried for this production is said by capable critics to be the most beautiful and correct ever used in a play of this calibre. All the scenes having been made from photographs of the originals of Dublin county, Ireland, where the action of the play takes place. The supporting company includes some very clever talent among them being Doc. C. Seldon, Clifford B. Smith, Sadie Marion, Gertrude Seldon, and the clever child artist, Baby Patti.

SPINNING WHEEL.

SONG OF THE DOUGH.

I.

Big, big, dough is the song of the candidate.
And he goes off his head
When he gets into a crowd
As he grabs at the magical staff
He wears for his share of the pap.
He is sterner, tougher, fiercer of spirit
He's willing to bridge any factional gap.
And there's nobody but fellows that are

II.

Dough, dough, dough! It never hits out,
And it's
For the doughnut note
Is the sound of the vote
And what white is a color for It's like the dove to be great
And in majesty rule over the land
And the chap that would sit in the temple
Must produce a fat wad in each hand!

III.

Fame, fame, fame! Is the shen that waxes
And it's
And they hunt out the cash
On a fractional basis
And they trim up their quantity of mail
The salary's five thousand per
And the work is not easy at that But things don't appear to be what they
And the costly job proves to be fat!

IV.

Woe, woe, woe! to the man that is labeled Most
For he's wasted his cash
In a bluff and a dash
And next time you'll see the same name
All unscathed by the shaft of defeat.
Blazoned in gold on the roll of the winners
For time
For the chase of the shon is sweet!
—Baltimore News.

The traveler along New England roads
Is sometimes forced to ask his way
In spite of maps and guide books. The information he receives may or may not be what he desires, but it is generally enlightening in one way or another.
"Can you direct me to Wilson Cascade?" asked a foot traveler of an old man who sat stanning himself in the doorway of a great barn which stood close to the road.
The old man squinted his eyes and took an extensive survey of the questioner before he spoke.
"Take first your right and follow it till you come to a fork where there's a clump of blackberry bushes," he said, slowly,
"and then strike off to the left. Follow that road till you come to the next crossroad, and then bear off to your left again."
"When you've gone a piece on that road
—it's not much more'n a path—you'll come on Abe Simmons's house. You'll know him because he wears plaid overalls, and I never saw anything like 'em anywhere else. Green and blue plaid, they are, and he makes 'em for him. Some say they like the looks of 'em and some don't. I've heard different feelings expressed, but, anyway, you can't keep from laughing
when you see 'em. I'll wager,
when you set eyes on 'em, I'll wager,
there was a man!"
"Excuse me, but I have only just so much time," said the traveler. "Will Mr.
Simmons direct me to the cascade?"
The old man blinked at him a moment.
"I presume to say he can," he answered, "but after you've seen those plaid overalls a little mess of water running over a little mess of rocks will seem pretty tame to ye." —South's Companion.

The ragged customer passed into the cheap bath emporium with such assurance that his order was promptly forthcoming and even more promptly eaten.
"Here, here!" yelled the cashier at his departing form, "this coin you gave me is no good!"
"Neither was your meal," floated back on the breeze as he faded from view.
—Baltimore Herald.

Now that Gen. Brooke is retired, it is interesting to recall one of his favorite stories, which has to do with the Civil war. He says that he was absent from his regiment for a few days at Washington toward the end of that struggle, and that upon returning, somewhat unexpectedly, he made an impromptu inspection of the camp. There had been no fighting, and discipline had been considerably relaxed, a number of small thefts had recently been committed and a negro had been arrested on suspicion. When Gen. Brooke, then a colonel, reached the guard tent he was surprised to find nobody about. He lifted the flap and looked inside. There sat a colored man in a second-hand uniform, smoking and playing with a kitten.
"De guard?" repeated the negro. "Oh,
dey's all out playin' han'ball!"
"But where's the corporal of the guard, then?" he demanded.
The negro grinned.
"De corporal," he responded, "is de best player in de regiment."
"Great heavens, man! Then where's the prisoner? Have they taken him along with them to play, too?"
The fellow's grin broadened.
"No," he said, "dey haven't done that.
I see de prisoner."

A woman cured her husband of staying out late at night by going to the door
when he came home and whispering
through the keyhole, "Is that you, Willie?"
"No," he said, "dey haven't done that.
I see de prisoner."

After a long, dusty walk to a country
town, and a morning spent in pering
over ancient records, an enthusiastic genealogist returned with these memoranda concerning his ancestors:
"Caleb Fox—His earmark is a cross on the left ear and a half-penny under the same ear and a split on the top of the right ear."
"John Starkweather—His earmark is a square cross on the left ear and a split
on the hind side of the right ear, split downward."
"Oh, what does this mean?" cried his wife. "How terrible! John, I wish you'd let genealogy alone. What crimes do you suppose they had committed?"
"What's the matter, my dear?"
"Why, this is the record of the way
the criminals were branded, isn't it?"
"What?" shouted the proud genealogist.
"My ancestors branded! These are the marks of their cattle among the first on record!"
"I am relieved," said his wife. —New York Evening Sun.

"You have a profound admiration for that philosopher."
"I have."
"And yet you say you don't fully understand what he writes."
"That's true. But the fact that he understands it himself shows that he must be a wonderfully smart man." — Washington Star.

Joseph Jefferson in his biography relates what was probably the last jest of Artemus Ward. When the famous wit lay dying in Southampton, he was attended by his devoted friend, Tom Robertson, the author of "Caste," who was also a friend of Jefferson.
"Just before Ward's death," writes Mr.
Jefferson, "Robertson poured out some medicine in a glass and offered it to his friend."
"Ward said:
"My dear Tom, I can't take that dreadful stuff."
"Come, come," said Robertson, urging him to swallow the nauseous drug.

There's a good fellow. Do now, for my sake; you know I would do anything for you."
"Would you?" said Ward, feebly stretching out his hand to grasp his friend's, perhaps for the last time.
"I would, indeed," said Robertson.
"Then you take it," said Ward.
The humorist passed away a few hours later."

Gleams from a recent examination in the San Francisco schools: "Define fathom and form a sentence with it." "A fathom is 6 feet. Aty has fathom." "A fathom is 6 feet." "Species is kind." "A boy must be species to his mother." "The fine odorous." "Odorous is without scent." "A man who is odorous cannot ride in the car."

Sometimes Judge Rufus B. Cowing loses his temper with lawyers who needlessly and at great length cross-examine witnesses. Recently an Italian was on trial before him charged with stabbing
a fellow countryman. On direct examination the complaining witness with much precision described how and where the stabbing occurred. A young lawyer started in on a very minute cross-examination, and asked the witness:
"Were you stabbed in the hall?"
"No, sir."
"Were you stabbed in the back yard?"
"No, sir."
"Were you stabbed in the cellar?"
"No, sir."
At this point the judge, with a smile,
broke in with the remark:
"Counselor, what is the use of asking all those questions when the witness has told us over and over again that he was stabbed in the stomach?" —New York Times.

A lady returning home from the sensitive unexpectedly found her waitress using the parlor for the purpose of giving a select party to her friends.
"Ann, I am surprised," she ejaculated.
"So am I, ma'am," replied the un-dashed girl; "I thought you wouldn't be home for a fortnight." —New York Daily News.

A young man, at the risk of his life,
saved a beautiful young girl from drowning. Her grateful father seized the rescuer by the hand and with a voice tremulous with emotion,
said: "No! No! To you I am indebted for everything that makes life dear to me. Which reward will you take—$10,000 or the hand of my daughter?"
"I'll take the daughter," replied the heroic rescuer, thinking thereby to get both the girl and the money.
"You have well chosen," replied the grateful father. "I could not have given you the $10,000 just yet, anyhow, as I have not laid out that amount, being only a poor editor, but my daughter is yours
for life. Take her and be happy. Heaven bless you, my children!" —New York Daily Times.

"This little boy has swallowed a $5
gold piece, doctor. I wish you'd get it out."
"I'll see what can be done about it. It's your boy, I presume?"
"No—I took him in payment of a bill!"
—Phegude Haetter.

At a recent school examination by the school board an officious member intimated that he would give a certain class a lesson on "wood." After lecturing to the children for a considerable time without any appearance of attention from the class he stopped short and began questioning one dull-looking boy. "Well, my boy," said he, "talking hold of the boy's jacket, 'what is this jacket made of?'"
The boy, hanging down his head, remained quite silent. "Come, come, my boy," the member coaxingly said; "don't you know what your jacket is made of?"
With eyes still on the floor the boy answered: "It was made out of my father's auld brecks." —Scottish American.

Nodd—I'm going to give a children's party. Will you come?
Todd—On one condition.
"And that?"
"That I can play with the children,
and don't have to talk with the grown-ups." —Life.

If the following incident is not literally true, it ought to be, for we find it in the Christian Register, a very trustworthy weekly paper: An absent-minded man went into a restaurant, called for a newspaper, and ordered coffee and a ham sandwich. The waiter brought a large pastboard check with the order,
and the man went on reading his paper.
Before waiting after the waiter returned, "Anything more, sir?" he said.
"Yes," snapped the man. "Get me a fresh sandwich. That was as dry as a bone." The waiter looked down, and gasped. "Lor," he exclaimed, "here's the sandwich. You've eaten the check."

Mr. Norther—I've often wondered why so many colored men are lynched down
this way.
Col. South—Well, sah, I reckon it's because they don't start runnin' quick enough. —Philadelphia Record.

"Speaking to the point and saying exactly what you mean points
me out of an incident that I witnessed
at Atlanta, Ga.," said Clinton N.
Howard, the temperance orator of Rochester, N. Y. "An aged negro of the Uncle Tom type had been knocked down and mangled by a trolley car.
The crowd gathered, and as he was being placed in the ambulance, one individual advised him to sue the company for damages. Damages," said the old man, with a look of supreme disgust, "but damages—better sue for repairs." —New York Times.

"Now, Willy, you may give me a sentence that will be easy to parse."
"Yes, sir. Bore's this one: 'Said the sparse, parsimonious parson: Parse the parson's!'" —Baltimore News.

A recent number of the Publishers'
Circular contains the following story with a moral which a bookseller tells of one of his clerks: A customer handed him a few books, saying: "How much?"
The assistant replied: "In sorry we can't make you an offer, sir; these books are all out of date now, and are absolute waste paper."
Customer—Oh, I didn't want to sell them. I've just taken them from your shelves. I want to buy them."
Assistant—Oh, I beg your pardon, sir!
Eighteen shillings is the cash price.

A lady went out in search of two others
who had gone out for a walk some time before. She met an old man and asked him if he saw two ladies pass this way:
"No, nor I wina lookin' for them." She met another and asked the same question. "No, but there might a been two pass' for anything at I ken or care."
At last she met a boy and asked the same question. He replied: "No, I did not see any ladies, but I saw two and wives." —Scottish American.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER

Cured by Pe-ru-na of Systemic Catarrh.

An Interesting Letter From

Mrs. M. K. Bousch, of Richmond, and Her Little Daughter, Pearl.

MISS PEARL BOUSCH

MRS. M. K. BOUSCH

was doctored by several good physicians,
but none did any good. My mother was taking Peru-na at the time and gave some of it to me, and I soon began to improve, and am now well and fat as a little pig. I am twelve years old. The doctors told mother I had the consumption, but it was only catarrh. —Miss Pearl Bousch.

It is no longer a question as to whether Peru-na can be relied on to cure all such cases. During the many years in which Peru-na has been put to test in all forms and stages of acute and chronic catarrh
no one year has put this remedy to greater test than the past year.

Peru-na is the acknowledged catarrh remedy of the age. Dr. Hartman, the compounder of Peru-na, has written a book on the phases of catarrh peculiar to women, entitled, "Health and Beauty."
It will be sent free to any address by The Peru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. M. K. Bousch, Richmond, Va.,
writes:

"I had catarrh all through my system
for two years and could get no relief.
I was advised to try Peru-na, and I have taken five bottles of it and am well and better now than I have been for years.
I can advise any one who has catarrh
of any part of the body to take Peru-na.
My little girl, who is eleven years old,
had catarrh, but was cured by Peru-na.
Before I began to take Peru-na I was sick all the time, but now I am entirely cured and all praise is due Peru-na." —
Mrs. M. K. Bousch.

Miss Pearl Bousch, writes: "When I was a baby I contracted catarrh, and

EVERY CHILD BORN INTO THE WORLD with an inherited tendency to distressing, disfiguring humours of the skin, scalp, and blood, becomes an object of the most tender solicitude, not only because of its suffering but because of the dreadful fear that the disfiguration is to be lifelong and mar its future happiness and prosperity. Hence it becomes the duty of mothers of such afflicted children to acquaint themselves with the best, the purest, and most effective treatment available, viz., THE CUTICURA TREATMENT.

Warm baths with CUTICURA SOAP, to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened outlets, gentle unswerving with CUTICURA OINT-MENT, to instantly allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, are all that can be desired for the alleviation of the suffering of skintormented infants and children and the comfort of worn-out, worried mothers.
A single set is often sufficient to cure when the best physicians fail.

Anti-Microbe Shaving.

In Jermyn street is what is staid to be the only antiseptic, microbe-proof barber shop in London. The first impression is rather grimly suggestive of a private operating surgery. The walls are tiled. There is no upholstery anywhere. The chairs are of metal, with head subject to frequent disinfecting. The basins are made with pedal taps to avoid the contaminating touch of human fingers. Everything your eyes rest on seems to say: "There are no germs on me." The barber is clad in sterilized overalls. He explains that that is to prevent any of his own personal and private stock of microbes from migrating to you. Before beginning to operate on you he dips his hands into some germ-destroying solution, and he assures you that the razor is sterilized afresh for each customer. From a capsule he empties into a sterilized vessel just enough soap powder to supply the lather needed for one shaving job. It seems that danger may lurk in soap that has been used to shave some other fellow. The price charged for the operation is sixpence.—

Friday Was Fish Day.

It was high noon, and Monday. Worse yet, it was the thirteenth day of the month. A knock was heard at the kitchen door of the Hurns mansion. The Chinese servant opened the door. A tramp of long and varied experience acceeded him.

"I've been traveling and have played in mighty hard luck," observed the tramp. "I lost all of my money in an attempt to corner oats, and now I am hungry, very, very hungry. Can't you please give me a little bite of something to eat?"

The Chinaman comprehended the situation at once. A benevolent, placid smile spread itself over his entire countenance.
"You like fish?" he asked of the tramp.

"Yes, I like fish first rate. That will do as well as anything."

"Come, fisher," said the hospitable heathen. —New York Times.

Mrs. Abbie Akey of Merrill is the guest of her parents and other relatives in this burg this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Thompson of Green Bay spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Lyo.

Geo. Hamm and Will Ost of Grand Rapids were in this vicinity Monday on business.

F. Phillips of Milwaukee was in the city on Tuesday, visiting relatives and friends.

Peter Akey is having a new kitchen built. It will improve the looks of his place.

Miss Anna Rood of Grand Rapids was the guest of the Jacobson family Sunday.

Little Gertrude Akey has been very ill during the past week.

Notice.

The following notice appeared in the Jacksonville, Ill., Courier on March 15, 1902, and will be of interest to many people in this vicinity. Mr. Noah Wellman of Peoria, Ill., for the past fifteen years a trusted employee of the Peoria, Decatur & Evansville Railroad Co., says: "I have tried different cough remedies and have never found any to be equal to Hart's Honey and Horehound for the cure of coughs, and would not be without it at hand. The children like the pleasant taste of Hart's Honey and Horehound and a trial will convince anyone of the special merit of this medicine." Large bottles twenty-five and fifty cents. Sold by Sam Church, druggist.

PORT EDWARDS.

W. A. Brazeau and E. F. Deyo left for Westfield Monday morning. The former on a vacation and the latter visiting relatives.

Mrs. King and family of Wausau have been visiting for the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Copeland.

Misses Blanche Cleveland and Lillian Moyer were callers at the S. Cleveland home Saturday.

Glenn Shellhammer, Johnnie Larson and Clifford Proteau are on the sick list this week.

Mrs. D. Cahill and daughter, Miss May, were shopping in your city Saturday.

W. Pulver has been giving the chapel a new coat of paint this week. Baby Kroll is recovering from a light attack of the scarlet fever.

Pleasant to the Taste.

—One of the most important requirements in a medicine to be given to small children should be that it is pleasant to the taste. Bad tasting medicines disturb the stomach, destroy the appetite and it is extremely difficult to get children to take them. The pleasant flavor of Re-Go Tonic Laxative Syrup the certain cure for dyspepsia, constipation, and biliousness, pleases the most sensitive persons and is the ideal laxative for young children. Sold by Sam Church Druggist.

BABCOCK.

Mrs. E. J. Erickson and little daughter, Edna, took the noon train on Thursday for their home at Sun Prairie, after a two weeks' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Law.

Mrs. W. F. Noltner and Mrs. Henry Griber were Tomah visitors on Wednesday and Thursday, in attendance at the fair.

Dr. Morse, wife and little son, Vere, are visiting for a couple of weeks in Oshkosh and Omro.

Mrs. Sam Griffith and Mrs. J. J. O'Riley were Grand Rapids visitors on Saturday.

Miss Belle Akey, our primary teacher, spent Sunday in Junction City.

Miss Gertrude O'Leary was the guest of Ethel O'Riley over Sunday.

Sheriff McLaughlin was a caller in town on Thursday.

Josh Westhafer, of Loogootee, Ind., is a poor man, but he says he would not be without Chamberlain's Pain Balm if it cost five dollars a bottle, for it saved him from being a cripple. No external application is equal to this liniment for stiff and swollen joints, contracted muscles, stiff neck, sprains and rheumatic and muscular pains. It has also cured numerous cases of partial paralysis. It is for sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

VESPER.

The Vesper saw mill started up on Saturday morning and shut down Saturday night for repairs. Very discouraging for the new manager, Mr. McNeble, who just moved his family here from St. Paul to run the mill this winter.

A Purson's Noble Act.

"I want all the world to know," writes Rev. C. J. Budlong, of Ashaway, R. I., "what a thoroughly good and reliable medicine I found in Electric Bitters. They cured me of jaundice and liver trouble that had caused me great suffering for many years. For a genuine all-around cure they excel anything I ever saw." Electric Bitters are the surprise of all for their wonderful work in Liver, Kidney and Stomach troubles. Don't fail to try them. Only 50 cents. Satisfaction is guaranteed by John E. Daly.

Short Course in Agriculture.

The practical course for young farmers at the college of agriculture promises to be largely attended the coming winter and all predictions are that the college will be taxed to its utmost to accommodate those seeking admittance. No entrance examination required and no tuition fees are charged to residents of the state. Two hundred and twenty-five young men already have signified their intention to enter at the opening of the term, Dec. 1, and have been enrolled in the course. Seventy-five more students can be accommodated and these will be accepted in the order of their application. Those contemplating attending should apply early to R. A. Moore, Madison, Wis.

Water Cure for Chronic Constipation.

—Take two cups of hot water half an hour before each meal and just before going to bed, also a drink of water, hot or cold, about two hours after each meal. Take lots of outdoor exercise—walk, ride drive. Make a regular habit of this and in many cases chronic constipation may be cured without the use of medicine. When a purgative is required take something mild and gentle like Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver tablets. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

A Great Day for Ireland.

Milwaukee Sentinel: "That was a great convulsion, Moike," remarked one son of Erin to another in the Plankinton house yesterday as they emerged from the headquarters of the democratic state central committee. "A great day for Ireland!" "Sullivan bossed the floor!" "First Kearney talked." "Then Gallagher spoke and Ryan pleaded." "Thin Donoran explained, and Dougherty orated and Donnelly joked." "Thin McGilbert shouted, Cleary talked and Gilbert turned loose his powers of spache, and Keeney yelled." "Mahlon smiled." "McBride then addressed the convulsion." "McGehean acquiesced and Madagan agreed." "And thin Pat Martin talked." "Corcoran made a motion and Gregory and Mahoney, and Bowles, and Hemlock, and Rogers give it a second." "And the Dutch cheered." "And thin the convulsion adjourned."

Lazarre—The Journal.

The most romantic tradition relating to Wisconsin is the basis of a story that The Milwaukee Journal begin to publish Saturday, Sept. 27. The story is that of Eleazer Williams, Episcopal missionary among the Oneida Indians, near Green Bay, who, it is believed by many, was really the lost dauphin of France—that son of Marie Antoinette, who disappeared so mysteriously after both his parents had become victims of the guillotine. The story in which this tradition about the dauphin figures, and which The Journal will soon begin to publish, is Lazarre, by Mrs. Mary Hartwell Catherwood, who has written so many strong and charming historical tales with scenes laid in the region of the Great Lakes.

Additional interest is lent to The Journal's announcement by the fact that Otis Skinner and his company of players are now producing Lazarre, the first performance of the play having, very appropriately, taken place at Green Bay Monday evening, Sept. 8. The story will be published in installments daily in The Journal. Orders for the paper should be placed at once with local dealers to insure getting the first chapter.

HARVESTING FRUIT.

Many Improvements Being Made and Much Money Invested in the Business.

On Friday of last week the editor of the Tribune in company with T. A. Taylor paid a visit to several of the cranberry marshes southwest of the city, and without exception we found the owners and their numerous assistants busily engaged in harvesting the crop and getting it into the warehouses preparatory to getting ready for market.

The first marsh visited was that of M. O. Potter. Mr. Potter had just quelled a strike among the Indians, which although not of the magnitude of the anthracite coal strike in the east, was of vastly more importance to Mr. Potter. When an Indian makes up his mind to strike it seems that he just raises himself onto his hind legs, utters one of the guttural shouts of the red man, makes a motion with his hand, and the strike is in full swing. Now one might just as well try to arbitrate with a team of frightened steers as a tribe of Indians that are on a strike, but it seems that the trouble on this occasion was between the Indians themselves and Mr. Potter had managed to quiet the matter for the time being at least.

Mr. Potter is building a new warehouse on his marsh. It is a mammoth affair and is being finished with more care and precision than the average man puts on his house. The main part of the warehouse is 30x60 and there is a cleaning room on the side 10x60. It has three stories and an attic and is being finished with hardwood floors and on every side there are several thicknesses of matched lumber with air spaces between, so that the building will be as near frost proof as it is possible to build a place. Mr. Potter expected to harvest about one thousand bushels of berries and had about a hundred pickers at work gathering in the crop as rapidly as possible. The berries that had already been placed in the warehouse presented a very nice appearance and seemed to be of excellent quality, about the same as last year. When the warehouse is completed a steel track will be laid from the marsh so that the work of bringing the crop in will be greatly simplified, as heretofore a wooden track has been used to run the cars on, which made hard work.

From the Potter marsh we went to the Gaynor-Blackstone place. Here pickers were just wending their way dinnerward, and Mrs. Gaynor greeted us with the welcome intelligence that if we would amuse ourselves for a few minutes she would have dinner ready for us. After partaking of a very wholesome dinner, during which Mr. Taylor entertained us with a learned dissertation on the evils of coffee drinking, during which he kept steadily eating, thereby gaining several laps on the rest of the crowd, we went out to inspect the marsh and the work that was being done. About the first thing that Mr. Gaynor told us was that he thought that the Indians were going to strike. He had not seen his neighbors, nor had the noble redman hinted anything about any coming trouble, but the knowledge of their ways and actions had apprised Mr. Gaynor of the fact that something was in the air.

During the past season Mr. Gaynor has made several improvements about the warehouse, and is now at work on a grader which will be completed in time to clean and sort this season's crop. It is expected that the running of the berries through this mill will take out all the dirt, pick out any frozen or soft berries and grade them into three sizes, and the machine is so arranged that the berries will be looked over as they run from the machine to the barrel. They expect to harvest about 2,100 barrels of this marsh and had something like two hundred pickers at work and a number of rakers. They expect to finish the work on Monday. They had lost a few berries from frost the previous week but although there had been a frost on Thursday night, they had got the water on the berries in time to prevent any damage. The quality of the berries is about the same as last year and the yield will be about the same, with a chance of its running a little short.

The next marsh we visited was that of A. C. Bennett & Son. Here we met A. E. Bennett, the junior member of the firm, who showed us about the place. The Bennetts expect to harvest about 2,200 barrels of berries this year and have a couple of hundred pickers at work getting in the crop as rapidly as possible. They expect to finish up the work today. This marsh escaped the heavy frost of week before last, but there was some damage done on Thursday night of last week. The Messrs. Bennett had begun to grade some of their berries, and they presented a very handsome appearance, although he stated that the quality was about the same as last year, while the quantity might fall a trifle short. Everything about the Bennett marsh is noticeable for its neatness and well-kept appearance, and it was a real pleasure to look over the place.

From here we went to the marsh of Eugene Warner. Mr. Warner has not a very large marsh, expecting to harvest only about two hundred barrels, but he has it in nice shape and is gradually increasing his acreage so that in time he will be up with the best of them. His berries looked very nice and he was getting them under shelter as rapidly as possible. We next visited the marsh of J. B. Arpin. Here a new warehouse is also being erected, which when completed will be a very complete and up-to-date affair. It is 24x70 feet in size and is so arranged that the wagon loaded with berries can be driven into the structure and unload. The building is being solidly constructed out of birch, with several thicknesses of lumber and paper with dead air spaces between, making it as impervious to frost as it is possible to construct any ordinary building. Mr. Arpin expects to harvest something like 3,000 barrels and at the time we were at the marsh about one-half of the crop had been placed in the cranberry house.

On our way home we also passed the Charles Lester marsh, but as it was growing late no stop was made. Mr. Lester still has a large number of berries to pick and estimates his crop at about 2,000 barrels.

Upon visiting these cranberry marshes one cannot help being impressed with the enthusiasm with which all the growers seem to enter into the work and the amount of investigation they do in order to improve their knowledge of the subject and thus aid them in getting a better crop. A trip to the marshes is well worth a day of anybody's time, and the only wonder is that more of our people do not take advantage of the opportunity to examine the workings of an industry that is rapidly becoming one of the principal sources of income in this section of the state.

THE PRESIDENT WAS HURT.

Abscess on Leg as Result of a Trolley Car Accident.

President Roosevelt has been compelled to give up his trip temporarily on account of an abscess that has developed on the knee of his left leg as the result of the trolley car accident which he participated in at Pittsfield, Massachusetts, some time ago.

He had reached Indianapolis, Ind., yesterday and had made several speeches in that vicinity, and none of his friends knew that he was suffering from any hurt, and it was consequently a great surprise when it was learned that he had gone to the hospital and had an operation to remove an abscess from his knee.

At the time of the trolley car accident he received a severe bruise on the knee and since that time the abscess has been gradually forming. The operation was performed successfully, and while no further evil results are anticipated the surgeons who had the case in hand state that the president will have to remain quiet for at least ten days, during which time he will have to abandon his trip, and as a consequence a great many people who had expected to see the president the coming week will be disappointed.

Death of James Hanna.

James Hanna, a resident of this city, died in Chicago on Wednesday of last week, cause of death being cancer of the liver. He had gone to Chicago to receive medical aid, but all that could be done for him was of no avail.

Deceased was born at Dansville, N. Y., and had lived in this city for several years, having been employed in the Grand Rapids Foundry company plant, he being a moulder by trade. He had been under the doctor's care since the 20th of April, and though he had suffered much from the malady that affected him he had borne his trouble with Christian fortitude, and was happy and cheerful until the last.

The funeral was held on Friday last under the auspices of the Odd Fellows and Modern Woodmen, of which orders he was a member. The sermon was preached by R. V. Shaw and interment made in Forest Hill cemetery.

Mr. Hanna, although a Baptist by faith, has always been quite an active Christian worker among other faiths in the city, and has often occupied the pulpit in the different churches, on which occasions he delivered very able and earnest sermons. From this practice he had gained the name of moulder preacher, and he leaves many friends who sincerely mourn his death.

He is survived by a wife, who wishes to express her thanks to the kind neighbors and friends who so thoughtfully assisted during the sickness and after the death of her beloved husband.

Charged with Horse Stealing.

George Taylor, a man hailing from the vicinity of Black River Falls, was arrested by Sheriff McLaughlin last week on a charge of horse stealing. The complaining witness in the case is Sam Greengrass, an Indian who also lives in the neighborhood of Black River Falls. The Indian had been on the cranberry marsh and stated that his pony had been stolen by Taylor while out of the owner's sight.

When arrested Taylor told an entirely different story, and stated that the pony had been put in his possession by the owner with instructions to take care of it temporarily. Taylor's hearing occurs on the 29th instant. In the meantime he is in the county jail.

MAY BE THE RABIES.

So Far as Experts Are Able to Judge It Is Myxobolus.—Other Items of Interest.

A red setter dog belonging to Clark Lyon became afflicted with some disease the fore part of the week, the symptoms of which very much resemble hydrophobia or, as it is commonly called, madness.

The dog first became affected on Monday, when he was noticed running about town in an aimless manner and paying little attention to anything except other dogs, which he did not hesitate to fight with, and as a general thing came off victorious. As the dog had been a very docile and friendly animal and never known to fight, his actions soon attracted the attention of Mr. Lyon who watched the dog, and looking up the symptoms of dogs afflicted with rabies he found that they tallied with the actions of his dog.

On Wednesday morning the dog was caught and it was the intention of Mr. Lyon to shoot the animal, but as he had bitten a large number of other dogs during the time that had elapsed since he was first noticed to be acting strangely, it was thought a wiser plan to confine the animal and await developments.

When the dog was captured this morning he had few, if any, of the symptoms of hydrophobia. He was docile and answered to his name promptly, and although he was badly lacerated by the fights he had had with other dogs, he was apparently recovering from his sickness, whatever it had been. Owing to the large number of dogs that have been bitten it would be well for owners of dogs to keep an eye on their canines, and if they show any symptoms of hydrophobia to confine them away from animals and people until the disease takes some definite form.

It is not necessary to shoot a dog the moment he shows indications of sickness, as the trouble may be something entirely different from rabies. Mr. Lyon's dog has shown no inclination to bite any person, but some authorities claim that the tendency is often only to bite animals or other dogs.

Football at Stevens Point.—The high school football team will play a game of football with the normal team at Stevens Point on Saturday next. It will be only a practice game, but will be a chance to discover what kind of material we have got this year. It promises good and the boys say that they will be able to make a good showing when it comes down to business. If they hold up their end as well as they did last year they will find the people ready to stay with them on every occasion. Following is the line up this year: Center, Chas Kruger; left guard, Len Renne; right guard, Guy Rowland; left end, August Bandler; right end, Earl Wood; quarter, Lacy Horton; full back, Earl Brenna; right half, John Corcoran; left half, Rowland Murgatroyd; substitutes, Roy Lester, Wilbur Menier, Floyd Jenkins and Henry Winger. The Wausau high school team has also organized and play their first regular game on Saturday. They claim to have a strong team this year.

Was Near Death.—Otto Flieg, who is the third hand on one of the machines at the mill of the John Edwards Manufacturing company at Port Edwards, came near meeting his death early Tuesday morning. He was engaged in starting the paper on the reel in company with another workman when he was caught and drawn through between the rolls, one arm and his head passing through. There happened to be very little paper on the rolls so that he was not killed instantly as he would otherwise have been, but he was pretty badly bruised up and got quite a squeeze between the rolls. A surgeon was called and looked him over and it is not thought that he will suffer any inconvenience.

Excursion to Marshfield.—The Wisconsin Central will run an excursion to Marshfield on Friday, September 26th, on account of the street fair which occurs in that city during the last three days of the week. The train will leave Nekoosa at 9:25 and Grand Rapids at 9:45 a. m. and the return train will leave Marshfield at 9 o'clock p. m. This will give those who wish to attend the street fair a chance to spend ten hours at Marshfield, which will be ample time to take in all the attractions of the fair. Elaborate preparations have been made to entertain visitors and there is no question but those who attend will find something doing.

Adjudged Insane.—Mrs. Henry Demitz was taken before Judge Conway on Friday to be examined to determine as to her sanity. She was found to be not of sound mind by the examining physicians and the judge remanded her to the northern hospital for the insane, where she was taken the same day. Mrs. Demitz has been more or less irrational ever since her husband met a violent death some two years ago, and for some time past has been living with her daughter in this city who had hoped to be able to take care of her without having her committed to an asylum, but had found it impossible.

An Old Landmark.—Frank A. Cady is moving a small house at the corner of Baker and Milwaukee streets which is an old landmark in that neighborhood, and a house which many of our older citizens remember with pleasure as well as in some instances with regret. The little house was formerly a schoolhouse and was erected some fifty years ago, and many an old resident acquired the rudiments of his education there. Mr. Cady is moving the building preparatory to erecting a modern residence there, which he may in time occupy with his family, while the old building will also be fixed up for the same purpose.

Chicken Pie Supper.—The ladies of the W. C. T. U. gave a chicken pie supper in the parlors of the Methodist church on Tuesday evening that was about the most successful thing of the kind that has been held in the city for some time. There was a large crowd in attendance and the supper served by the ladies was an exceptionally good one, and everyone seemed greatly pleased with the entertainment furnished them. The object of the supper was for the purpose of discharging the debt that had accumulated on the 20th century place.

Wrestled at Pittsboro.—Fred Beell and Henry Boisjoly wrestled at Pittsboro on Saturday evening, best three out of five falls, catch-as-catch-can style, and the match resulted in a victory for Beell. Boisjoly won the first fall and Beell won the next three. Boisjoly claimed to be the champion of Canada and weighs about 185 pounds, some twenty-five pounds more than Beell. A good crowd greeted the wrestlers and everybody seemed to be pleased with the match.

Broke His Nose.—The first football victim this year was Master Howard McLaughlin, who broke his nose while engaged with some of his playmates in a game of this popular sport. Dr. Looze fixed the youngster up and he will soon be able to be out and assume his old position in the team, for it takes more than a broken nose to discourage the average young American who is a football enthusiast.

Carey-King.—Miss Laura King and Dr. George H. Carey, both of Merrill, were married in that city on Tuesday. Miss Mayme Daly of this city acted as bridesmaid. Miss King is well and favorably known in this city and her husband is well known physician who has made Merrill his home during the past year. The doctor and his bride have the best wishes of their friends in this locality.

Administrator Appointed.—Walter S. Paddock of Milwaukee has been appointed administrator of the estate of J. W. Cameron, the appointment having been made in accordance with the petition of Mrs. Mary F. Cameron and Frank J. Cameron. The estate amounts to $500,000 in personal property and $18,000 in real estate. The deceased left no will whatever at the time of his death.

Bought Insurance Business.—G. W. Paulus has purchased the insurance business of W. A. Keyes & Son and that business will be added to the rapidly growing business of Mr. Paulus. Since engaging in the real estate and insurance business Mr. Paulus has met with great success, much better than he had anticipated in so short a time, and he feels greatly encouraged by the outlook.

Worth Attending.—The band boys want it known that they are going to make their dance which occurs on October 2nd an affair that will be greatly enjoyed by the dancing public. They have prepared a lot of new music among which is the Bachelor Maid's two step, which has caused very favorable comment wherever it has been played. The dance occurs a week from Thursday.

Improving the Road.—A gang of men and teams have been at work on the stretch of road near South Centralia facing the thoroughfare with clay, and the result is that the road is already much improved thereby. The clay is being taken from the cut near the railroad at South Centralia, and seems to be particularly adapted for this purpose.

A Pleasant Party.—The Misses Johnson entertained a party of their friends at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nels Johnson, on Saturday afternoon and evening and a very pleasant time is reported by those that attended. Among the other amusements the young folks indulged in dancing for several hours.

Nearing Completion.—The new wagon factory being erected by the MacKinnon Manufacturing company is being carried along at a rapid rate and it begins to make a very neat appearance, being constructed of brick. It is probable that another month will see the greater part of the work completed.

Marriage Licenses.—County Clerk Renne has issued the following marriage licenses during the past week: Henry Kuemichel and Bertha Darfane, both of Marshfield.

Democratic Convention.

The Democratic county convention for the purpose of placing in nomination a member of assembly and a full county ticket will be held at Marshfield on Friday afternoon, September 26th. Owing to the fact that the street fair is also in session at that date a train will be run down at nine o'clock and the delegates will be enabled to get home the same evening. The delegates to the convention from this city are as follows:

First ward—Louis Schroeder.
Second ward—Henry Kline and Herman Abel.
Third ward—George W. Baker.
Fourth ward—Albert Bunde.
Fifth ward—Joseph Lucascheski.
Sixth ward—D. D. Conway.
Seventh ward—P. Mulroy.
Eighth ward—G. W. Mason.

—On account of removal call up 231 for electrical wiring or postal in box 152. G. M. Huntington.

A short time later, and he drew up in front of the old mill. It was as picturesque a spot as one could well imagine, for great trees overhung the ruined mill and the noisy fall of the water over the dam could be plainly heard.

Roger had evidently been here before, and made all arrangements, for, even as he leaped to the ground and was in the act of lifting Carol down, the door opened and a woman appeared in view, holding a sputtering candle.

The shadow of a terrible crime hung over the place, and most people in the neighborhood avoided it, especially after nightfall. All the money in the vaults of the treasury could hardly have tempted one of the negroes on Richmond Terrace or Darrel Chase to have willingly gone to the haunted mill when darkness had descended upon the land.

What this crime was does not enter into our story, so far as particulars are concerned, but let it suffice to say that the mad miller murdered his wife in a fit of jealousy, and also the man who was working for him, ending the terrible tragedy in a fitting manner by taking his own life.

The children of this unhappy couple had been taken in charge by relatives, who tried to rent out the mill, but the effort was in vain, for all united in declaring it was haunted, and that in the middle of the night they would be aroused by a terrible din.

They declared they heard the mad miller chasing his wife and hired man from room to room, cursing and reviling, while they prayed and pleaded with him. Then would come the sound of heavy blows with a knife, one for each person, heavy falls, terrible groans, and silence would ensue.

For some years back the mill had been inhabited by a woman who called herself Mrs. Randall, and it was assumed that she was a widow. She was quiet and troubled no one, and always seemed to have enough money to keep herself in existence and aid those poorer than herself.

Carol was warmly received. She sank wearily into a chair, and then gazed about her with a trifling show of interest, while the woman went to prepare a room.

Somewhat the young girl had thought Mrs. Randall's eyes had rested upon her in a most singular manner, and yet to her knowledge she had never seen the lady before.

That she was a lady despite her poor surroundings was plain to be seen. Her hair had once been black, but was now a silver gray, and brushed smoothly away from a forehead that was white as snow, though furrowed by the cares of years.

The room in which Roger and Carol were left was scantily furnished, and what few articles there were showed signs of age, having, no doubt, once been the property of the mad miller.

Upon one wall was a picture, in a small frame, with its face turned away. Several other pictures there were, but none had been treated in this way.

She saw Roger standing near her, his eyes glued upon her form as though he was drinking in all her loveliness, and she did look beautiful beyond all comparison in her wedding dress of white silk, but somehow her mind wandered back again to the picture on the wall, and again she let her eyes fall upon it.

Curiosity in itself is strong enough in any one, but it was some greater power than this that urged Carol to walk over to the picture. It seemed as though some invisible power had held of her hand and was leading her on.

She turned the little picture, gave one glance, and then, with a cry of dismay and astonishment, let it fall back in its old position.

She had gazed upon the face of her father!

CHAPTER IX.

What did it mean? This was the question that kept ringing its changes through her brain as she stood there before that mysterious picture.

The face was that of a man in the prime of life, evidently between thirty-five and forty, and so different was it from the Lawrence Richmond of the present that she might not have recognized it had not she seen a copy of the same picture upon the wall at home.

What mystery was this? By what right did this lone woman, who came from no one knew where, have her father's picture upon the wall? Was the fact of its face being turned in to be considered an insult, or what? Her blood began to leap through her veins, but she was suddenly aroused by the voice of Roger.

"Carol!" A simple pronunciation of her name, but there was that in the tone that caused her heart to seemingly stand still.

Roger had only obtained a glimpse of the face that was inclosed in the gold frame and turned to the wall, and he had not recognized it, of course. His mind, too, was upon other things, and he paid little heed to the emotion of the young girl save as it referred to him.

He came a step closer to her. His arms were held out, his pleading eyes fixed upon her own with a glance that was almost fascination.

How she longed to throw herself into those arms and be forever at rest; but she knew full well guilt would never let her rest, and with a heroism worthy of the olden martyrs, she stifled her throbbing heart as best she could, and held back.

What did she believe of him, standing there and looking him in the eyes?

The story of Nora Warner, as told by that unfortunate girl herself, must have flashed into her mind like lightning, but, with her eyes upon Roger Darrel's handsome, honest face, she was as sure that he could do no wrong to any one willfully as that she drew breath.

That Nora Warner was his wretched wife she understood too well, for had he not himself acknowledged the stain upon his name; but that he had acted the part of a villain toward her Carol could never believe.

Wonderful, is it not, what things dart through the mind in a few seconds of time? Roger could bear the silence no longer. When he spoke his voice vibrated

ed with emotion, which he tried in vain to suppress.

"Carol, my own love, for the last time I come to you, a suppliant. Pride has given way before the love that floods my soul. You may hate me for thus tempting you, but I do not look at it in the same light you do. The shame of the past is buried in the mad house. Why should this woman come between us? Oh, my poor darling, why were you cursed with a love like mine, that seems to blight where it falls; and yet if I could serve you by having my poor body tortured, willingly would I undergo the affliction. You believe me, do you not, beloved?"

"You know I do, Roger. You know that my heart is wholly yours, and ever will be, but once again I tell you what you ask can never be. There rests between us a deep and unfathomable abyss. My heart is breaking, Roger, but better that it should do so with love than shame and disgrace."

"Shame and disgrace," he muttered, repeating her words almost unconsciously, and with a vague look upon his face. "Forgive me for saying it, dear, but I cannot ever be your wife while Nora Warner lives. Her death can wipe out the shame, nothing else. Until then we can be nothing to each other."

A light leaped into his face that was most wonderful to see. It seemed transfigured, and the sadness of woe unutterable gave way to the brightness of hope and joy.

"Carol," he said, huskily, "would you be my wife if Nora Warner were dead, so that her name would be all that was left of her? Would that indeed wipe out the disgrace that has fallen upon the name in your eyes?"

"To both of your questions I have but one answer—yes! Heaven knows how willingly I would join my lot with yours, to be with you always, in sickness or in health; but while Nora Warner lives it is impossible. Give up all thoughts of such happiness, dear Roger, for it is beyond reach."

She pitied him the more since she had seen that glad light leap into his eyes, for she felt sure that he was building up false hopes.

"What do you mean, Roger?"

"Nora Warner is dead!" he replied, slowly.

The girl gave a start, and an exclamation fell from her lips. "Impossible!" she cried.

"Not so, dearest. Read that letter, and you will see that what I have told you was the truth. Nora Warner, poor girl, has found rest. The letter was delayed in finding its destination, and some kind fate directed it into my hands. Read."

This was what she read in the great, coarse scrawl of a man who had been a scholar once, perhaps, but never a good penman:

"Mr. Roger Darrel: 'Sir—The young woman whom you committed to my care, Nora Warner, made her escape from the asylum a week since, and drowned herself in the river. We have this day succeeded in finding the body, which, though badly mutilated by the fishes, has been identified by articles of clothing as that of your unfortunate wife. I shall wait for you two days, and at the termination of that period, should you not come, will have the body interred. With deepest sympathy for your great loss, I subscribe myself, your humble servant, 'TIMOTHY GRIM, M. D. 'Elysium House on the Potomac.'"

She read this through and then handed it back to him with a look of pain on her face.

"This Timothy Grim, M. D., may on ordinary occasions be a keen man, but fate has made a football with him, or else this letter has been purposely delayed so that any deception he may have intended could be carried out. One thing is sure: Nora Warner is in the flesh for days after this letter was written. I have seen and conversed with her, face to face."

"Alive and here! What can she want, poor girl! but why need I ask? If that be so, then all is gloom again where I had caught a glimpse of dawn, and the darkness will be all the darker and the pain more bitter because of it. Oh, Carol, am I to go from you forever? Something seems to tell me that if we part now it will be never to meet again."

His eyes were fixed upon her face, full of the passionate fire of the absorbing love that possessed his soul, and she trembled under the look, knowing her weakness now that love had such a power over her heart; but she summoned up her courage and resolutely shut out the alluring scene that came before her.

"Roger, there is but one answer," she said. "Love can command my life, but it can never cause me to forget that I am a Richmond. As the dearest friend I have on earth, I look to you, but more than that you cannot, must not be while she lives. My answer is—heaven help us both—no!"

He nerved himself to meet it like a man, but it was a terrible blow. "Carol, it may be you are right, though I am too blinded by love and sorrow to comprehend it. In the future I shall be to you a friend in time of need. I shall come and see you here, but never again as your lover. Then if there is any relative to whom you would like to go, I will take you there. I hear Mrs. Randall coming. Trust in her, for she is a true friend. And now farewell, my love. My life, farewell, farewell."

Panting, she struggled from his fierce embrace. He stood there looking at her while she grew calm and icy cold. Then turning, he took his hat and left the old mill.

She sank back with clasped hands and tearful eyes. "Give me strength, oh Father in heaven, for the light of my life goes out with him!"

CHAPTER X.

When Mrs. Randall entered the room, the mind of the young girl leaped again to the mystery that had engrossed it before Roger Darrel made his appeal for life and love—the picture turned with its face to the wall.

What was there in the hidden past of this still handsome woman that connected her with Lawrence Richmond?

The widow had not even heard Carol's name from Roger, he having only stated the bare facts, and she had consented at once to aid him, her soul recognizing the injustice of such a forced marriage.

Carol possessed a part of her father's determined character, and she did not long beat about the bush. Though her question apparently startled the widow, there crept a shadow of pain into her face and her voice trembled as she said:

"People often turn to the wall the pictures of those dead. He is dead to me." "Was he a great friend, then?" asked Carol, breathlessly. Her eyes glided upon Mrs. Randall's face.

"He was more than that, child. Ah! It is a sad thing to have the one you love best upon earth turn upon you and revile you—to wrongfully accuse you of that at which your heart recoils in horror; to send you from him as he would a leper, and at one fell sweep, wipe out the happy past. I loved him," she continued, in a low, sad tone, "as man was never loved. I have loved him so truly that I have forgiven the great wrong he did me, though my pride would never allow me to seek his presence again. Upon the dear graves in the sunny South I have shed bitter tears, but when I think how I shall meet them above, where the truth will be made known, and my heart shown to be as spotless as the marble shaft that marks their grave, I take hope again."

It was at this point that the first gleam of the light that was soon to overwhelm Carol, came into her mind. She could only sit there with all her senses strained, drinking in the sweet voice of the widow and await the coming shock.

"Trouble and sorrow have been my lot. Ah! I never thought I should survive that dreadful night, and many a time since I have looked back to shudder and feel my heart grow cold with the horror that took possession of it. He turned a deaf ear to my pleadings—my vows—and cursed me, but for that I have forgiven him, for I was innocent. His curse went home. God punished him, oh, how terribly, and yet at the same time I had to suffer with him, for were they not my darlings? Not one was left; he alone remained to curse the blight that had fallen upon his home, the desolation that had robbed him even as he had robbed me."

"In heaven's name, who are you, and what relation do you bear to Lawrence Richmond?" she gasped, her eyes aflame with eager expectancy.

"I was told afterwards that the courts had made us strangers, but for eight years he called me by that dearest name on earth—wife. I am nothing to him now save the wretched woman from whom he was divorced, and who loves him still in spite of her wrongs; but why do you ask? Your face is white, and your hands tremble. You advance toward me—you hold out your arms. No, it must be a dream, for they all sleep under the magnolias. Girl with the eyes and face of my dead Carol, what relation does this man bear to you?" and she tore down the hidden picture, holding it in front of Carol's face.

LIGHTEST WOOD THAT GROWS.

Found in Missouri, and It Is Considerably Lighter than Cork.

Deep in the bogs and swamps of southeastern Missouri, in Dunklin and Butler Counties, where the land is never dry and water from one to six feet deep stands perpetually in the forests, there grows a rare and curious tree. The natives know it as the corkwood, or cork tree. Science has given it a longer name, the Leimneria floridana, floridana because it was first discovered in Florida along the coast, from which it has long since been washed away.

Some meager specimens of it, two to six feet high, are still found in the swamp near Appalachicola, Fla., and a few near Varner, Ark., but in both these places it is exceedingly limited in numbers, an occasional specimen being found, and hardly rises to the dignity of a tree. Only in southeast Missouri, where it reaches a height of fifteen to twenty feet and a diameter of two to five inches, is it really a tree.

What makes the corkwood so remarkable is its exceeding lightness. Beyond a doubt it is, as William Trelease, of the Missouri Botanical Garden, has shown, the lightest tree in weight that grows. Its wood weighs less than cork. It is so light that the natives use it to make floats for their fishing nets. And yet its wood, though so spongy that one may easily sink one's finger nail in it, is far tougher than cork. The specific gravity of corkwood, as learned from careful tests made by Professor Nipher, in St. Louis, is .207. The roots are even lighter than the stem; a test showed them to have the astonishingly low specific gravity of .15.

A further idea of the lightness of the corkwood may be gained by a comparison with other woods. The great majority of woods range between .400 and .800. Cork itself is .240. The tree that approaches closest to the corkwood in lightness is the golden fir tree, which grows in the swamps around Tampa bay and along the Indian River, Florida. Its specific gravity, according to Sargent, is .2616. In comparison with the corkwood, which is the lightest wood with its specific gravity of .207, may be placed the heaviest wood known, the black ironwood of Florida, whose specific gravity is .1302.

Reason Enough.

"Marry," said the young matron's mother, "it seemed to me you were very cold to John this morning."

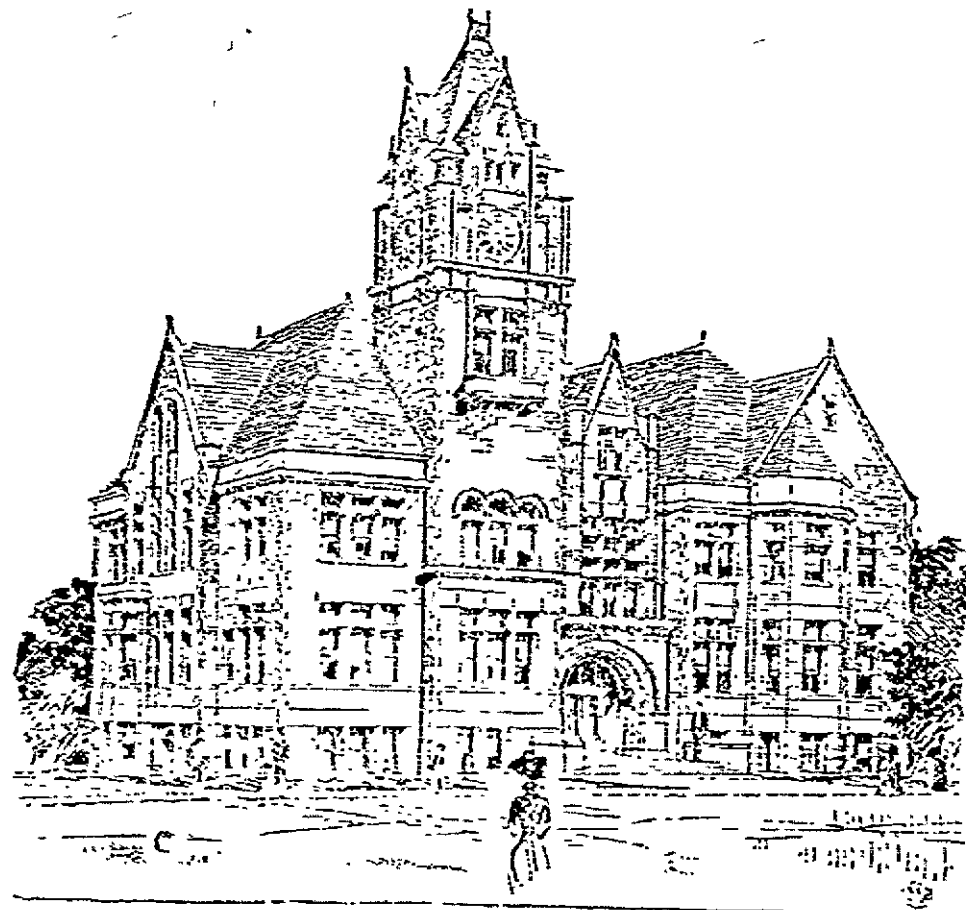

"Yes," she replied, "I'm beginning to suspect him."

"The idea! You have no reason, I'm sure."

"Haven't I? I dreamed last night that I saw him kissing another woman."

COUNCIL ACCEPTS JANESVILLE'S CITY HALL.

Janesville, Wis., Sept. 17.—[Special.]

The common council last evening accepted the new city hall, which has just been completed. The building is a credit to the city. The architectural work reflects much credit to A. W. Kusch, who planned and designed the building.

James Rorson & Son also performed their work in a creditable manner and hurried the construction of it as much as possible. The work on the building was commenced on September 23 of last year. The foundation walls have been put in with a view of supporting great weight. The offices in the building are all large and roomy and the lighting is first-class.

The structure is of a Romanesque architecture and its dimensions are 70x100 x110, two stories high and basement, with a tower reaching 70 feet high above the main cornice line. It is one of the most imposing buildings in the city, and its perfectness in the way of construction and evenness of the color of the material used in its construction makes it show up very prominent.

The inside finish of the building is one of the attractive features of it, and it has been done in a manner that conforms in beauty to the solidity and excellence of the exterior.

ABDUCTOR IS DIVORCED.

MRS. MARY B. GOULD GRANTED A DECREE IN MINNESOTA.

Husband Kidnaped Children and Sent Them to England, Where They Are at Present.

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 20.—A sequel to a sensational kidnaping affair was enacted at St. Paul, Minn., yesterday, when Mrs. Mary L. Baring Gould was given a divorce from Arthur Baring Gould on the grounds of desertion.

No mention was made in regard to the children who were kidnaped by the father of any alimony. No defense was made, and the whereabouts of the husband is not known.

It is the ending of a sensational abduction, at Oshkosh, Wis., last year, when Baring Gould, who is connected with the English nobility and a cousin of the Baring Bros., the great London bankers, took the children away from the custody of his wife, with whom he was not then living, and sent them to England to be educated. They are now being cared for by his relatives.

This episode is said to have completely upset Mrs. Baring Gould. She came here prostrated and lived with her sister, the wife of Register Sanborn of the Minot land office. Mrs. Baring Gould is a daughter of the late R. L. Biggar, formerly a widely known merchant of Oshkosh and afterwards postmaster at Lisbon, N. D.

TO SEEK OLD TRAIL.

Man Who Carried Mail Between Green Bay and Manitowish Fifty Years Ago to Make Trip.

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Mr. Reynen of this city starts this morning on a journey which will be of great interest to himself and to the people of this part of the state. Of interest to Mr. Reynen, because it has been fifty years since he made it before, and of interest to the public because it will show how much the country has been improved since that time. In the fall of '52 Mr. Reynen carried the United States mails over Indian trails between Green Bay and Manitowish.

Tomorrow he starts out to see if he can trace his old trail between the two places. He will go horseback, as he did fifty years ago, and expects to return next week. In speaking of the trip today Mr. Reynen said that he was doubtful of being able to find his old trail. He said that he would probably find farm after farm on the ground which was formerly covered with Indian paths, but the trip of bringing up many pleasant memories of the time when he traveled through this wilderness alone with the government mail. He was but 14 years old at that time and he is now a man of 64.

TO REMOVE MAN'S CHEEK.

Operation to Be Tried by Cutting Out Cancer and Grafting Skin from the Arm.

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Mr. Joseph Kennedy of Brinsmade, Benson county, N. D., is at one of the local hospitals to have a portion of his cheek, on which there is a cancer, cut away and in its place a piece of skin from one of his arms grafted.

Mr. Kennedy some time ago had a cancer cut away but it returned. He came down here and the surgeons thought it so large that it was a serious problem as to how to get flesh back into its place. According to Mr. Kennedy the decision was made to get the cancer off and then to cut a flap on the arm and to place it over the wound, the flap pinning the arm to the face by means of a plaster cast. It will have to remain in that position for several weeks in order to become firmly grafted before the cast is taken off.

A preliminary operation was performed yesterday and he is getting along nicely.

Valuable Jewels Picked Up in Neshoto River Near the City.

Two Rivers, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Quite a number of valuable pearls have recently been found in the Neshoto river. This river abounds with limestone rocks a few miles from here, among which thousands of clams can be found and it is here that most of the shells containing pearls are found.

Dr. A. J. of this city has purchased the Watertown Sanitarium and intends to equip it with all modern appliances. He will act as chief surgeon. P. J. Dierl will soon have his bowling alleys completed. It will have three alleys and be finely equipped.

GORED BY WILD HEIFER.

WILLIAM BLANCHARD OF REEDSBURG SERIOUSLY INJURED.

It is Feared the Wounds will Prove Fatal as Vital Spot Was Pierced.

Reedsburg, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—William Blanchard, a farmer, delivered a herd of cattle to the La Valle stock yards twelve miles north of this city, among which was a wild heifer.

After the animal was untied it made a lunge at him, thrusting one horn into his groin, inflicting a severe wound.

He was taken to the office of Dr. Miller, where his wound was dressed. It is feared that the wound will prove fatal.

GAMBLERS' HARVEST AT NEENAH CARNIVAL.

Followers of Street Fair Are Said to Have Had a Big Week Fleecing the Visitors.

Menasha, Wis., Sept. 20.—Gamblers and grafters following a street show have in three days fleeced residents in Neenah and Menasha of $40,000. The games were run in open view of the street. One thousand one hundred dollars was seen to pass over one table in less than fifteen minutes.

F. N. Dugan, a divinity student at Lawrence University, was asked by the gamblers to act as a capper at the games. Last night girls were allowed to enter saloons and bet money on the "sure thing" games. Merchants and citizens generally are loud in their denunciation of the gambling operations.

The Menasha Woodmen's Company paid $28,000 to employes Wednesday. Of this sum $15,000 is now estimated to be in the hands of the gamblers, and $13,000 worth of advance checks by employees to apply on next month's account.

SMASH SLOT MACHINES.

Reedsburg Residents Lose Money and Then Seek Revenge by Demolishing the Devices.

Reedsburg, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Ald. Frank Foss and Dr. J. I. Collins, a veterinary surgeon of this city, demolished two slot machines in a regular Carrie Nation style, although no hatchet was used in the work of destruction. They came into the saloon of Albert Gifford on Main street and after playing the machine themselves, picked up a mustard glass off of the lunch counter and hurled it at the machine, which caused the glass to scatter all over the room. They next picked up the machine and threw it on the floor with such force as to cause it to shatter to pieces.

Ben, on destruction, they next went to the saloon of Hahlow & Lindsay and in a few minutes had the machine of that place out of commission. They left this place with the intention of clearing up the entire town, but met William Miller, who owns the machines, and were persuaded to discontinue their work of destruction.

PAID $23 FOR WIFE.

Frank Weetski of Kenosha Contracts to Purchase Life Partner for that Amount.

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Frank Weetski, a resident of this city, agreed to pay $23 to Joseph Szepanski providing the latter would supply him with a wife. This the last-named agreed to do and the money was paid several months ago. Szepanski failed to live up to his promises and yesterday he was made the defendant in a suit to recover the money.

Weetski is a laborer in the employ of the Bain Wagon Works. He had been living in Kenosha for several years, and growing tired of living alone he appealed to his friends to assist him in securing a wife. The Szepanskis finally agreed to secure a Polish wife for Weetski for the sum of $23.

The would-be husband worked early and late and in time had saved the money necessary, which he paid over to the matrimonial agent and with patience waited for the coming of his fiancée.

Kenosha Couple Wed.

Waukegan, Ill., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Yesterday Charles S. Smith and Portia Elise, both of Kenosha, came down here, secured a marriage license and were wedded.

ADAPTABILITY OF HOUSEKEEPING.

It's a Veritable Picnic Beside Some Business Women's Tasks.

It is seldom that so true a statement concerning woman's work is seen as the following from the New York Sun: "Probably if women had never taken up business careers they would have gone on to the end of time considering the person who looked after the details of a home and planned three meals a day as a martyr who was fairly weighed down by the awful monotony of her lot. There is one person who will never take much stock in that old cry, and that is the woman who has been in the steady grind of a business career."

Housekeeping is to a certain limit elastic in its demands. You can wash tomorrow if it rains today. But newspapers or magazines go to press on certain hours regardless of the elements or moods of humanity.

There are many trying things in housekeeping, and it may be monotonous to cook or plan three meals a day, to make beds and sweep, but how about the stenographer who takes dictation for hours at a stretch, without a thought of the monotony which all women are so often advised to take; or the girls in shops and factories, who work from morning till night, with no time to run out to gossip with a neighbor or to do necessary shopping?

Housekeeping in its adaptability and variety is a veritable picnic beside other spheres of work, says one writer in commenting on the subject. A woman needs a year or two of business, not a teacher's life, to understand the good points in housekeeping's trade, and girls who have come from offices or stores frequently make the best of household traditions and there are a lot of these that ought to be forgotten.

Had Crazy Spells.

West Pembroke, Me., Sept. 22.—The 13-year-old daughter of Mrs. A. L. South suffered with a peculiar affliction which her mother describes as follows:

"It is two years now since she was first taken with crazy spells."

"They kept on coming at intervals and I could get nothing to do her any good."

"The doctors gave me no encouragement. They all said they could not help her."

"The crazy spell would last about nine days, then she would be well about nine days, but would eat very little and was very yellow. Even the whites of her eyes were yellow."

"I heard that Dodd's Kidney Pills were a great remedy for young girls and decided to try them."

"After taking one box she was completely restored and she has not had one bad spell since. Of course we continued to use the pills and she used altogether five boxes last fall."

"In March I thought I saw symptoms of the spells again and I got six boxes, of which she has taken four, and is in splendid health."

"Her case was certainly a remarkable one, and we are very thankful to Dodd's Kidney Pills for the great good they have done my daughter."

His Long Suit.

"I was in Washington once," said a man at the club, "when Tom Reed was the czar of the House of Representatives. He was holding forth with earnestness on some subject to a group of friends when that man you see over there by the cigar counter pushed his way through the crowd, grasped Reed by the hand and said, 'Hello, Tom, old boy, how do you do?'"

"Reed responded in a manner that was more of a shake for the man than for his hand and went on with his talk. When our friend over there had edged out of the crowd someone said: 'You didn't seem to be happy over him, Reed. Who is your friend, anyway?'"

"Reed drawled out: 'He's a fellow from New York who knows more men who don't want to know him than any other man in the United States.'"

LOUIS A. LANG, of Fond du Lac.
For State Treasurer—
ED. L. LUCKOW, of Baraboo.
For Attorney General—
OLAF R. SKAAR, of La Crosse.
For Railroad Commissioner—
D. W. A. REDNER, of Ashland.
For Insurance Commissioner—
WILLIAM H. FERBER, New London.
For Superintendent of Public Instruction—
KARL MATHIE, of Wausau.
For Member of Congress, Tenth Congressional District—
BURT WILLIAMS, of Ashland.

DAVID S. ROSE.

Supt. Karl Mathie.

The nominee of the Democratic party for the state superintendency of public instruction is a native of Wisconsin. He was born at Wausau, April 12, 1866, and received his early education in the public schools. His father, who was a skilled blacksmith, and believing that every boy ought to learn a trade, placed young Mathie in a workshop, where he acquired the trade of jeweler and watchmaker. The young mechanic, however, had greater ambitions than to spend the rest of his life at a trade, and after repairing clocks and watches and manufacturing jewelry for six years he entered Lawrence University. Here he not only graduated but took valedictorian and oratorical honors. Thereafter he attended Harvard University, where he took a year's post-graduate work. In 1892 he entered the profession of teaching by becoming principal of the Wausau high school. After serving three years he entered the ministry. In this field he remained for one year, when he resumed his educational labors. He then became the superintendent of the Wausau schools, which position he has filled with great credit to himself and his city. In the establishment of the Marathon County Training school, Supt. Mathie manifested considerable interest. He labored incessantly toward creating public sentiment and in securing the necessary appropriation for it. Last December Mr. Mathie was made the President of the Wisconsin Teachers' Association. The coming semi-centennial meeting of the association will, under his direction, no doubt, prove a decided success. Mr. Mathie is a man of fine character, able and energetic. He will administer the office, if elected, impartially and strictly in the interest of the public education.—Wisconsin Journal of Education.

Looks Like Rose.

From the number of Rose buttons that are being worn about town just now the democratic nominee for governor would seem to be quite a popular fellow in spite of all the talk we are compelled to listen to by the alleged admirers of LaFollette. Every day sees more converts to the cause of Democracy, and notwithstanding the fact that the republicans are doing the best they can to keep up their courage by telling how badly demoralized the democrats are, the democrats seem to be happier in their demoralization than the republicans are in their alleged strength.

In spite of a drizzling rain on Sunday a fair sized crowd of spectators gathered at the fair grounds on that day to see the game between Wausau and Grand Rapids, and although the game resulted in a victory for the visitors there was some good playing on both sides, and the score was close enough all the way through so that the interest was kept up until the end of the ninth inning.

The home boys made a few wild plays at times and went to pieces for a few minutes during which the Wausau boys got in two runs which gave them the game, the locals being unable to make up the lead. Had it not been for this one break the ninth inning would have ended with the score standing 4 to 4.

The almost continuous rain made the ball hard to handle and this probably prevented some of the playing being as good as it would have been otherwise.

The Tribune is in receipt of a proposition from a North Carolina concern which offers us 20 quarts of good whiskey, valued at $20, in return for $15 worth of advertising and $5 in cash. This is the latest. We have been approached by advertisers who offered us patent smoke consumers, bug catchers, axle grease, saleratus, soap, and various and sundry other useful articles, but this is the first time we have been tempted with anything so alluring as 20 quarts of whiskey.

This is where the editor has the bug on his neighbors. While some man may be compelled to come home to the bosom of his family and find his wife and children crying for only few drops of whiskey, when an editor leaves for his place of business in the morning he can do it with a clear conscience for he knows there is an abundant supply of whiskey to last until his return, and if there isn't he can easily make a new advertising contract and get another 20 quarts. Just keep your eye peeled and when you see a country paper running an ad. that says in large letters, "Whiskey, $1.10 per gallon" you will know that that editor has sold his good advertising space for a demijohn of poor whiskey and that he has in his cellar the wherewithal for a protracted drunk with probably a case of delirium tremens on the side. Notwithstanding the fact that the hunting season is on, that we live in a very changeable climate where stimulants are an absolute necessity, and that the campaign is rapidly approaching, we are compelled to turn the offer down.

Dog Owners, Attention!

A dog pronounced to be suffering with rabies having been at large the last two or three days, and having bitten many other dogs, it has been considered advisable to prohibit for time all dogs from running at large unless muzzled. Owners of dogs, therefore, must see to it that their dogs be either muzzled or kept at home, as the police will be given notice to shoot all unmuzzled dogs running at large. Owners of dogs bitten must either shoot their dogs or keep them under close quarantine until period of incubation is over.

Attorney D. D. Conway returned on Thursday from Wautoma where he had been trying a case before the circuit court. The case was rather a peculiar one, Frank A. Kennedy having brought suit against M. Plank & Co. of Hancock, to recover the value of a horse. Mr. Kennedy had gone to the store of Plank & Co. and bought what he supposed was a quantity of gaudier salts but which subsequently turned out to be copperas. It was given to a horse and the horse died. Mr. Conway was for the plaintiff and the court found for him in the sum of $315.

—Come out and see the great Irish comedy drama "The Game Keeper" at the Grand Opera House, Friday night, Sept. 26th. Prices 25, 35 and 50c.

As the campaign waxes hotter, and the indications point more certainly to the defeat of Governor LaFollette it will be amusing to watch the half-breeds in their frantic efforts to convince the admirers of Sen. Spooner that they are as earnest in their desire to see him returned to the senate as any stalwart ever was. As soon as they are convinced of the danger which now lurks in their hidden attacks upon him, they will cringe like a whipped spaniel before the glance of a cruel master. The fear of losing office is a powerful deterrent to half-breed statesmen.—Madisonian.

—FOR SALE.—Black stallion half Belgian, white face, age 5 years, weight between 15 and 16 hundred, has stood two years and raised some fine colts. For further particulars inquire of Peter Moberg, Sigel, Wis.

Once, says a writer, I suddenly opened the door of my mother's room and saw her on her knees beside her chair, and heard her speak my name in prayer. I quickly and quietly withdrew with a feeling of awe and reverence in my heart. Soon I went away from home to school, then to college, then to life's sterner duties. But I never forgot that one glimpse of my mother at prayer, nor the one word—my own name—which I heard her utter. Well did I know that what I had seen that day was but a glimpse of what was going on every day in that sacred closet of prayer, and the consciousness strengthened me a thousand times in duty, in danger, and in struggle. When death came at last and sealed those lips, the sorrest sense of loss I felt was the knowledge that no more would my mother be praying for me.—Our Dumb Animals.

—The favorite singing and dancing comedian, Thos. J. Smith, who will be seen at the Grand Opera House, Friday, Sept. 26th, in Con T. Murphy's latest Irish drama, "The Game Keeper," is today the only recognized star who can sing, dance and act. Mr. Smith will no doubt be remembered by all, when the fact is made known that he was the original star in "The Ivy Leaf." The scenery carried for this production is said by capable critics to be the most beautiful and correct ever used in a play of this calibre. All the scenes having been made from photographs of the originals of Dublin county, Ireland, where the action of the play takes place. The supporting company includes some very clever talent among them being Del. C. Seldon, Clifford B. Smith, Sadie Marion, Gertrude Seldon, and the clever child artist, Baby Patti.

ROSE OPENS CAMPAIGN.

Milwaukee Mayor Starts Gubernatorial Fight.

LA FOLLETTE IS SCORED.

Governor's Taxation and Primary Election Views Held Up and Denounced as Impractical.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Sept. 10.—David S. Rose, Democratic nominee for governor, opened his campaign yesterday, after speaking from his special train at Jackson, West Road, Kewaskum, Campbellport and Eden, closed with a big speech in the armory here last night.

Mayor Rose devoted the day to criticizing the La Follette administration. Beginning by criticizing the methods alleged to be used to secure La Follette's nomination, he criticized most of Gov. La Follette's acts, including his taxation and primary election views.

The crowd in the armory tonight was large and there was a big display of flags.

Mayor Rose spoke as follows:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen: In the presence of this great assemblage the true significance of the responsibility which I have been invited to assume is realized, and in the blazing scroll I read the injunction, "Keep the faith." Like one who clings to the heights, I dare not hesitate or falter. I have no fear of the future, for I have no fear of the past. I have no fear of the future, for I have no fear of the past. I have no fear of the future, for I have no fear of the past.

My position for this high office was voluntarily accepted by the convention that gave it. I sought it not, by direction or inducement, and to this statement every delegate will attest. I esteem the honor far above expression and only my conduct shall speak the depth and sincerity of my position.

The Purpose of Government.

Temporal happiness is the product of social harmony. Government is only an agency to secure security and contentment and political organizations are instituted to secure the welfare of the people.

When society is disturbed, when confidence is impaired, when discord supplants tranquility, it is manifest that defects in government exist and that political parties are most desirous to secure the support which has the best disposition, the courage and ability to remedy the defects of governmental organism and restore the conditions which government should secure.

The Government Disrupted.

For two years and more the social structure of our state has been disarranged. The people have been divided. The union has been severed. As fires of hate have been kindled and in their devouring flames, fed by avarice and selfishness and personal ambition, the public welfare has been consumed.

Public office has become a recruiting station for factional forces, popular rights have been trampled under the feet of political supremacy, and public duty has been neglected for the accomplishment of factional ends.

Surely the material interests of our state are too important to be imperiled by the factional quarrels of these whom the people have elected with authority and obligation to sustain the welfare of the state. The general welfare can not be conserved by the neglect of official duty. Harmony should characterize the relations existing between the executive and legislative branches, and while both are co-ordinate in power, yet the exercise of this power should be with prudence and judgment.

What Benefits Have We Received?

Can it be said that the administration of state affairs during the last two years has been acceptable to the people? Has it been profitable in its popular results? Has the public service been improved?

Have taxes been reduced?

These and many other questions of equal importance to the people are confronting the voter at this moment. They should be considered dispassionately and honestly.

A Fair Campaign.

In the conduct of this campaign I shall confine myself to honest and fair discussion of those matters and questions in which the people have an interest. The private acts of individuals are not the concern of the public. I shall not be moved by them from my determination to treat my adversary, and the things he stands for, with courtesy and perfect fairness, as their merits or demerits deserve.

For many years I have been the target for vituperation and vilification. Personally returned to the city of Milwaukee, I have been persecuted by the press and the people, but with a tranquil mind I have received the judgment of the people, and I have received the approval of the people, and I have received the approval of the people, and I have received the approval of the people.

They have judged conditions in the light of intelligent investigation and have reached conclusions which the channels of calm and sane government should follow.

For four years I have been governor over one-seventh of the entire people of Wisconsin, and I have received the approval of the people, and I have received the approval of the people, and I have received the approval of the people, and I have received the approval of the people.

notice as an aspirant for gubernatorial honors in the character of an opponent to the present administration. He stood as the avowed antagonist of Mr. Spooner, Mr. Foster and Mr. Sawyer, the acknowledged leaders of the opposition, and he attacked their methods and appealed to the people to rise in opposition to their continuance in party supremacy.

In the contest he was an aggressive contestant for the nomination for the office of governor against Mr. Spooner. His ambition was to be elected and he was determined to win.

La Follette's campaign for the nomination in 1904 began. He was elected with great vigor he applied himself to the accomplishment of the purpose then conceived. His arrangement of those who opposed him grew more severe with each attack. He was a man of great energy and he was a man of great energy.

tem and then determine whether or not he is justified in his unyielding and stubborn obstinacy. I specify the following objections, each of which I esteem to be of sufficient importance to justify the defeat of the Stevens bill:

First—The cost of a primary election conducted in conformity with the provisions of the Stevens bill would be a public expense to be borne by the taxpayers and would approximate $100,000 in the state for an election.

Second—It is not possible to have fifty candidates for every office upon the primary election ballot, because only 2 per cent of the voters are required to sign the petition to entitle a name to be placed upon that ballot.

Third—It would be entirely practical for twenty of the most popular elites in the state to nominate all candidates for state offices and the populous centers of all districts would be able to control all nominations.

Fourth—A plurality would be substituted in place of a majority in expressing the will of the people.

Fifth—The organization could control nominations, for by organization the votes could be centralized upon one candidate or one set of delegates, while the unorganized voters would be distributed among many candidates.

Sixth—A challenged voter would be morally precluded from changing his party affiliation at the primary election and before the general election even if he so desired. But this is not the worst. Under this revolutionary and I believe unconstitutional innovation with a voter may be compelled to disclose his intentions as his sacred right is destroyed. I stand unalterably in defense of the right of secret ballot and of the right of a voter to vote with any political party his judgment and his conscience shall dictate and I denounce any interference with that right as patently and un-American.

Seventh—The candidate receiving the highest number of votes is made the nominee, however insignificant his plurality may be.

Ninth—The candidates make the congressional platforms is vested in the congressional committee.

Tenth—County, state and assembly and senate district platforms are wholly abolished.

Two of these objections I regard as of utmost importance to the general welfare. The first objection is that the Stevens bill would be employed instead of a majority in making nominations. Under our form of government it is intended that the people shall elect their representatives by the vote of a majority. It is elementary; it is fundamental; it is the basic principle of democracy.

The second objection is the most vital objection, that the Stevens bill, the right to make platforms is taken away from the people.

Has the time arrived when the people shall place their sacred right to elect their public servants by positive injunction and explicit pledge?

Think of it for a moment. When the people, through a duly accredited representative, have adopted a platform and stated their policies, every candidate nominated by those representatives is committed to the policies and principles embodied in that platform. It is a safeguard, an official conduct. It creates a responsibility, for the observance and discharge of which the candidate, if elected, must answer to the voters.

For my part, I believe that no system will ever be adopted which will constitute an improvement upon the old-fashioned platform method. The platform is a part of our political life. It is a part of our political life. It is a part of our political life.

Through the activity of these legislators the old law has been completely abolished. The new law is a part of our political life. It is a part of our political life. It is a part of our political life.

The average attendance at primary or caucus meetings can only be secured by personal solicitation and active canvassing. The majority of voters do not attend these meetings. Milwaukee has a voting population of about 70,000, and yet a total vote of 10,000 is secured. The majority of the voters do not attend these meetings.

A primary election law would of necessity result in the practice of strong-arm tactics for the purpose of securing a majority. The majority of voters do not attend these meetings.

The majority of voters do not attend these meetings. The majority of voters do not attend these meetings. The majority of voters do not attend these meetings.

and out of season to create the impression that they are unilaterally opposed to the Stevens bill. The Stevens bill is a bill to seek to increase the burden upon the railways.

Upon such nonsense. But it is in the result of the Stevens bill that the public profession and his official acts. By the one he seeks to arouse class prejudice against the other he truckles to the classes against which these prejudices are directed.

The railway companies have been fairer to the individuals. If this is true, and if they will agree to be controlled by the public, then we are entitled to expect that there is only one position that they can assume and that is to increase the burden upon the individual in order to make the share he bears fairly equal to that which is borne by the railway companies.

Notice.

—The following notice appeared in the Jacksonville, Ill., Courier on March 15, 1902, and will be of interest to many people in this vicinity. Mr. Noah Weiland of Peoria, Ill., for the past fifteen years a trusted employee of the Peoria, Decatur & Evansville Railroad Co., says: "I have tried different cough remedies and have never found any to be equal to Hart's Honey and Horehound for the cure of coughs, and would not be without it at hand. The children like the pleasant taste of Hart's Honey and Horehound and a trial will convince anyone of the special merit of this medicine." Large bottles twenty-five and fifty cents. Sold by Sam Church, druggist.

PORT EDWARDS.

Pat Smith moved in the old boarding house and S. Cleveland moved his family to the old homestead. E. Harris will occupy the house vacated by S. Cleveland.

W. A. Brazee and E. F. Deyo left for Westfield Monday morning. The former on a vacation and the latter visiting relatives.

Pleasant to the Taste.

—One of the most important requirements in a medicine to be given to small children should be that it is pleasant to the taste. Bad tasting medicines disturb the stomach, destroy the appetite and it is extremely difficult to get children to take them. The pleasant flavor of Re-Go Tonic Laxative Syrup the certain cure for dyspepsia, constipation, and biliousness, pleases the most sensitive persons and is the ideal laxative for young children. Sold by Sam Church Druggist.

BABCOCK.

A Parson's Noble Act.

"I want all the world to know," writes Rev. C. J. Budlong, of Ashaway, R. I., "what a thoroughly good and reliable medicine I found in Electric Bitters. They cured me of jaundice and liver trouble that had caused me great suffering for many years. For a genuine, all-around cure they excel anything I ever saw." Electric Bitters are the surprise of all for their wonderful work in Liver, Kidney and Stomach troubles. Don't fail to try them. Only 50 cents. Satisfaction is guaranteed by John E. Daly.

Short Course in Agriculture.

The practical course for young farmers at the college of agriculture promises to be largely attended the coming winter and all predictions are that the college will be taxed to its utmost to accommodate those seeking admittance. No entrance examination required and no tuition fees are charged to residents of the state. Two hundred and twenty-five young men already have signified their intention to enter at the opening of the term, Dec. 1, and have been enrolled in the course. Seventy-five more students can be accommodated and these will be accepted in the order of their application. Those contemplating attending should apply early to R. A. Moore, Madison, Wis.

Water Cure for Chronic Constipation.

—Take two cups of hot water half an hour before each meal and just before going to bed, also a drink of water, hot or cold, about two hours after each meal. Take lots of outdoor exercise—walk, ride drive. Make a regular habit of this and in many cases chronic constipation may be cured without the use of medicine. When a purgative is required, take something mild and gentle like Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

A Great Day for Ireland.

Milwaukee Sentinel: "That was a great convinsion. Moike," remarked one son of Erin to another in the Plankinton house yesterday as they emerged from the headquarters of the democratic state central committee. "A great day for Ireland!" "Sullivan bossed the floor!" "Sullivan Kearney talked." "Then Gallagher spoke and Ryan pleaded." "Thin Donovan explained, and Dougherty orated and Donnelly joked." "Thin McGilgan shouted, Cleary talked and Colbert turned loose his powers of spache, and Feeney yelled." "Mahon smiled." "McBride then addressed the convinsion." "McGeehan acquiesced and Madagan agreed." "And thin Pat Martin talked." "Corcoran made a motion and Gregory and Mahoney, and Bowles, and Hemlock, and Rogers giv it a second." "And the Dutch cheered." "And thin the convinsion adjourned."

Lazare—The Journal.

The most romantic tradition relating to Wisconsin is the basis of a story that The Milwaukee Journal begin to publish Saturday, Sept. 27. The story is that of Eleazar Williams, Episcopal missionary among the Oneida Indians, near Green Bay, who, it is believed by many, was really the lost dauphin of France—that son of Marie Antoinette, who disappeared so mysteriously after both his parents had become victims of the guillotine. The story in which this tradition about the dauphin figures, and which The Journal will soon begin to publish, is Lazare, by Mrs. Mary Hartwell Catherwood, who has written so many strong and charming historical tales with scenes laid in the region of the Great Lakes.

Additional interest is lent to The Journal's announcement by the fact that Otis Skinner and his company of players are now producing Lazare, the first performance of the play having, very appropriately, taken place at Green Bay Monday evening, Sept. 8. The story will be published in installments daily in The Journal. Orders for the paper should be placed at once with local dealers to insure getting the first chapter.

The Merchant Tailor.

People who are Particular

What They Eat always insist upon having Dewey, Victoria or Sunbeam Flour. Bread made from it retains all the elements of the wheat that goes to make brain and strength and has a delicious wheat flavor that is all its own. Sold by all grocers. If not at yours, write the mill.
